Diseases of Men.

The immense power which the nervous system and the brain possesses over the health is a most important physiological fact, one that has been hitherto overlooked and upon which a proper system of treatment must depend.

Of all diseases which afflict the human frame there is not one possessing more importance than nervous and general debility, owing to its subtle character and the slow and stealthy manner in which it makes inroads upon the strongest constitution. There can be little doubt that year by year it has been increasing, nor is this to be wondered at. The habits of the present generation are such as tend to debilitate the frame. The customs of society compel us to lead to a great extent a life that is artificial and the vices of to-day are of the most enfeebling and dangerous kind. There is no complaint that requires closer attention than that of debility, for one of the most fearful results of this disease is that it is not the body only that suffers, but the mind takes of the deterioration, and multitudes who might have lived to become ornaments to society become victims of misery in consequence of their minds becoming weak and believing that their cases were incurable.

Having devoted many years of my practice to this specialty I am now enabled, by a new system of treatment I have discovered, to restore health, vigor and manhood to the most feeble and shattered constitution, no matter how aggravated the case may be or how long standing.

LOUISIANA.

The Report of President Hayes' Commission.

HOW ITS CONCLUSIONS WERE REACHED.

The Nicholls Legislature Assembled in the State House.

MR. PACKARD'S CLOSING ADDRESS.

REPORT OF PRESIDENT HAYES' COMMISSION.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 25, 1877.

The following is the report of the Louisiana Commission, given out by the President this afternoon:—

NEW ORLEANS, April 21, 1877.

To the PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES:—

SIR—In accordance with your request the undersigned have visited this city and passed the last sixteen days in ascertaining the political situation in Louisiana and endeavoring to bring about a peaceful solution of its difficulties.

In view of the declaration in the letter of the Secretary of State that we should direct our efforts to the end of securing the recognition of a single Legislature as the depositary of the representative will of the people of Louisiana, leaving, if necessary, to judicial or other constitutional arbitrament within the State the question of ultimate right, and, in view of your determination to withdraw the troops of the United States to their barracks as soon as it could be done without endangering the peace, we addressed ourselves to the task of securing a common Legislature of undisputed authority, competent to compose the existing political contentions and to preserve the peace without any aid from the national government. To this end we endeavored to assuage the bitterness and animosity we found existing on both sides, so as to secure a public opinion less unfavorable to such concessions as were indispensable to our success in obtaining such a Legislature and such a general acquiescence in its authority as would insure social order.

CONFERENCES HELD.

We have had full conferences with the two gentlemen who claim the gubernatorial office and with many other members of their respective governments in their executive, judicial and legislative departments. We have also conversed very freely with large delegations of men of business, with many of the district judges and with hundreds of prominent citizens of all parties and races, representing not only this city but almost every parish in the State. We have also received many printed and written statements of facts and legal arguments, and every person with whom we came in contact has shown an earnest desire to give us all possible information bearing upon the unfortunate political divisions in this State.

THE CONDITION OF AFFAIRS.

The actual condition of affairs on our arrival in this city may be briefly stated as follows:—Governor Packard (we shall speak of both gentlemen by the title they claim) was at the State House with his Legislature and friends and an armed police force. As there was no quorum in the Senate, even upon his own theory of the law, his Legislature was necessarily inactive. The Supreme Court, which recognised his authority, had not attempted to transact any business since it was dispossessed of its court room and the custody of its records on the 9th of January, 1877. He had no organised militia, alleging that his deficiency in that respect was owing to his obedience to the orders of President Grant to take no steps to change the relative position of himself and Governor Nicholls. His main reliance was upon his alleged legal title, claiming that it was the constitutional duty of the President to recognize it, and to afford him such military assistance as might be necessary to enable him to assert his authority as Governor.

Governor Nicholls was occupying the Odd Fellows' Hall as a State house. His legislature met there, and was actively engaged in the business of legislation. All the departments of the city government of the city of New Orleans recognized his authority. The Supreme Court, nominated by him and confirmed by his Senate, was holding daily sessions, and had heard about two hundred cases. The time for the collection of taxes had not arrived, but a considerable sum of money in the form of taxes had been voluntarily paid into his treasury out of which he was defraying the ordinary expenses of a State government.

THE LEGISLATURES.

The Nicholls Legislature had a quorum in the Senate upon either the Nicholls or Packard theory of the law, and a quorum in the House on the Nicholls, but not on the Packard theory. The Packard Legislature had a quorum in the House on its own theory of the law, but, as already stated, not in the Senate, and was thus disabled from any legislation that would be valid, even in the judgment of its own party.

RECOGNITION IN THE PARISHES.

The commission found it to be very difficult to ascertain the precise extent to which the respective governments were acknowledged in the various parishes outside of New Orleans. But it is safe to say that the changes which had taken place in the parishes after the organization of the two governments on the 9th of January, 1877, were in favor of the Nicholls government. The claim to the legality of the Supreme Court, composed of Chief Justice Manning and his associates, who were nominated by Governor Nicholls and confirmed by his Senate, rests upon the same basis as the title of Governor Nicholls and his Senate. The claim to legality of the Supreme Court, composed of Chief Justice Ludeling and his associates, rests either upon their right to hold over in case the Nicholls Court is illegal, or upon the legality of this Kellogg-Packard Senate which confirmed the judges upon the nomination of Governor Kellogg and while it had a Returning Board quorum.

THE LEGAL QUESTION.

We have briefly sketched the actual position as we found it. We will now state the legal question upon which the right of these respective governments depends. The constitution of the State of Louisiana requires that "returns of all elections for members of the General Assembly shall be made to the Secretary of State." It also provides that "the qualified electors shall vote for Governor and Lieutenant Governor at the time and place of voting for representatives. The returns of every election shall be sealed up and transmitted by the proper returning officers to the Secretary of State, who shall deliver them to the Speaker of the House of Representatives. On the second day of the General Assembly, then to be holden, the members of the General Assembly shall meet in the House of Representatives and examine and count the votes."

It will be observed that this provision of the constitution requires the returns of the votes for Governor and Lieutenant Governor to be sealed up and transmitted by the proper returning officers to the Secretary of State, and the same provision is made, in substance, as to members of the General Assembly. But in 1870 the Legislature passed an act, amended in 1872, which created a body called a Returning Board, consisting of five members to be appointed by the Senate, and to "be the returning officers for all elections in the State." The act provides that "the Commissioners of Election at each poll or voting place shall count the votes," making lists of the names of all persons voted for and the officers for which the votes were given, the number of votes received by each, the number of ballots contained in the box, and the number rejected and the reasons therefor; and to make duplicates of such lists, and send one to the Supervisor of Registration of the parish of Orleans and the other to the Secretary of State. The law further requires the Supervisors of Registration to consolidate the returns received from the different polling places and forward them with the originals to the Returning Board. The act further provides "that if there shall be any riot, tumult, acts of violence, intimidation and disturbance, bribery or corrupt influences at any place within said parish, at or near any poll or voting place, or place of registration or revision of registration, which riot, tumult, acts of violence, intimidation and disturbance, bribery and corrupt influences, shall prevent, or tend to prevent, a fair, free, peaceable and full vote of all the qualified electors it shall be the duty of the commissioners to make a statement of such facts and forward the same to the Supervisor of Registration with his returns of the election, and the Supervisor of Registration shall forward the same to the Returning Board."

The Returning Board is required to investigate the statements of intimidation and to exclude from the returns which it makes to the Secretary of State the returns received by it from those polls or voting places where a fair election has been prevented by the causes above named. The same law further declares "it shall be the duty of the Secretary of State to transmit to the Clerk of the House of Representatives, and to the Secretary of the Senate of the last General Assembly, a list of the names of such persons as, according to the returns, shall have been elected to either branch of the General Assembly, and it shall be the duty of the Clerk and Secretary to place the names of the Representatives and Senators elect, as furnished upon the roll of the House and of the Senate respectively, and those Representatives and Senators whose names are so placed by the Clerk and Secretary respectively, in accordance with the foregoing provision, and none other, shall be competent to organize the House of Representatives or Senate."

CLAUSE OF UNCONSTITUTIONALITY.

It is claimed by counsel for the Nicholls government that this act, so far as it interposes the Returning Board exercising these powers between the parish Supervisor of Elections with his consolidated returns and the Secretary of State is, when applied to the election of members of the General Assembly, of Governor and of Lieutenant Governor, a plain violation of those provisions of the constitution of Louisiana which say the returns of all elections for members of the General Assembly shall be made to the Secretary of State, and in reference to Governor and Lieutenant Governor the returns of every election shall be sealed up and transmitted by the proper returning officers to the Secretary of State, who shall deliver them to the Speaker of the House of Representatives. On the other hand it is insisted by counsel for the Packard government that the Legislature has the power to create this Returning Board and give it the authority with which the act clothes it. It is also claimed by them that the constitutionality of the act has been settled by the Supreme Court of the State; but the Nicholls party denied that the question was decided by the Supreme Court in a manner that could be considered authoritative.

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS.

It should be further stated that it is not claimed by the counsel for the Nicholls government that the Legislature could not create a returning board and clothe it with these powers, in regard to the appointment of Presidential electors, since the provisions of the State constitution on which they rely relate only to the election of the members of the Legislature, of Governor and of Lieutenant Governor. We quote the following sentence from one of their printed arguments:—

"Indeed, as to Presidential electors, the mode of their appointment is by the Constitution of the United States left to the discretion of the Legislature of the State. Therefore the General Assembly of Louisiana might create any tribunal whatever, and confide to it the appointment of electors for President and Vice President. Consequently, it may properly authorize such a tribunal in the case of the election of Presidential electors by the people to count the votes and decide and declare who were entitled to seats in the Electoral College."

THE ONLY HOPE OF SETTLEMENT.

As matters stood on our arrival here the legal title of the respective claimants to the office of Governor depended upon the question we have stated. There was no judicial tribunal acknowledged to be authoritative by both parties by which it could be solved, for the reasons already given. The only hope of a practical solution was by a union of so many members of the rival Legislatures as would make a Legislature with a constitutional quorum—in both the Senate and House—of members whose title to their seats is valid under either view of the law. With a Legislature of undisputed authority the settlement of other questions could, as stated in the letter of instructions to our commission from the Secretary of State, "be gradually worked out by the prevalent authority which the legislative power, when undisputed, is quite competent to exert in composing conflicts in the co-ordinate branches of the government."

Within the last three days this first great step in restoring peace to the State has been accomplished. In consequence of a withdrawal of members from the Packard to the Nicholls Legislature the latter has now eighty-seven Returning Board members in the House and thirty-two Returning Board members in the Senate. Sixty-one members constitute a constitutional quorum in the House and nineteen in the Senate. It is proper that we should say in conclusion that it was in view of the foregoing facts, especially the consolidation of the legislatures and our knowledge of the condition of Louisiana, derived from personal contact with the people, that we were induced to suggest in our telegram of the 20th inst. that the immediate announcement of the time when the troops would be withdrawn to their barracks would be better for the peace of Louisiana than to postpone such announcement to some distant day.

The commissioners, holding various shades of political belief, cannot well concur in any sketch of the past or probable future of Louisiana. We have forborne in this report to express any opinion on the legal questions arising upon the foregoing statement of facts, because our letter of instructions seemed to call for a statement of facts rather than an expression of opinion by the commissioners. We all, however, indulge in confident hopes of better days for all races in Louisiana. Among the reasons for these hopes are the resolutions of the Nicholls Legislature and the letter of Governor Nicholls, herewith submitted, and which have already been given to the public.

With an earnest hope that the adjustment which has been made of the political controversies of Louisiana will be of lasting benefit to that State, and will be approved by the patriotic people of all sections, we have the honor to be, your obedient servants,

THE STATE HOUSE OCCUPIED BY THE NICHOLLS LEGISLATURE.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

NEW ORLEANS, April 25, 1877.

In accordance with the programme telegraphed last night the Nicholls government to-day took possession of the State House. At twelve o'clock M. the Legislature assembled for the last time at the Odd Fellows' Hall, and then proceeded in a body to their quarters.

END OF THE MUDDLE.

The city is very quiet, all parties accepting the situation gracefully, and thus ends finally and happily the great Louisiana muddle.

SPEECH OF SENATOR-ELECT SPOFFORD TO THE JOINT CONVENTION—PACKARD'S FINAL ADDRESS.

NEW ORLEANS, April 25, 1877.

After the ballot yesterday the Lieutenant Governor declared Judge Spofford elected Senator for the long term. On motion a committee was appointed, composed of Senators Robertson and Allaire and Messrs. Young, Stewart and McMillan, who waited upon Judge Spofford and escorted him to the Speaker's stand.

ADDRESS OF THE SENATOR ELECT.

The Senator elect made the following address:—

GENTLEMEN OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF LOUISIANA:—Words are inadequate to express my gratitude for the confidence you repose in me. The compliment it implies is announced by the fact that you are fully aware of the critical circumstances that surround the State, and you have had before you the names of so many true and able men, who might, perhaps, have served the State better than myself. It will be my endeavor to show by future acts the gratitude that cannot be proved by present words. When I consider the vast responsibility of this office at this time, I feel no elation even at the great honor it confers. I feel rather like invoking the aid of a power higher than the power of man to enable me to do something, however humble, toward restoring fallen fortunes and reviving the ancient glories of Louisiana. I tender my profound thanks especially to the republican members who have so generously cast their votes for me. I beg to say that I shall take the concurrent resolutions adopted last week as my letters of instruction from the people of the State. These resolutions are in harmony with my own convictions of our duty in the new era that is dawning before us so brilliant with promise. The heart's desire and prayer to God of the American people is now for peace—peace between sections, peace between races, aye, peace even between parties; peace everywhere, and if it be possible peace forevermore.

END OF THE WAR ERA.

There is a widespread belief that the fulness of time has come at last when those bitter partisan hates that ultimately led to intestine war—to the subordination of reason to force, indifference to questions of right and wrong, thriftless habits, greed of plunder and reckless disregard of human life that war leaves behind in its dismal train—should be supplanted by nobler aims. It is a growing public sentiment that magnanimity cannot longer be banished with safety from the domain of politics. If the administration of President Hayes shall grant to this land white-winged peace, industrial progress and an honest civil service—but these three things—it will be crowned with the benedictions of a grateful people. To do what in us lies to promote a policy so grand (which I understand to have been announced by the public utterances of the President) I understand to be the pledge embodied in the resolutions to which I have referred; and, in taking leave of you now, be assured, gentlemen, that whatever of ability and zeal and influence I may command shall be faithfully devoted to the redemption of your pledges. (Applause.)

The joint assembly then adjourned, and many friends of Judge Spofford hastened to congratulate him.

PACKARD'S ADDRESS.

The following is the address of Mr. Packard to the republicans of the State:—

STATE OF LOUISIANA, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
NEW ORLEANS, La., April 25, 1877.

To the REPUBLICANS OF LOUISIANA:—

On this day, the fifteenth anniversary of the surrender of New Orleans to the forces of the United States, it becomes my duty to announce to you that the aid and countenance of the national government has been withdrawn from the republicans of Louisiana, and that a government, revolutionary in form, is practically on the point of usurping control of affairs in this State. I recall the circumstances of the last electoral campaign only to thank you for the fidelity to principle you then displayed. The republican party, as you know, entered upon the canvass united and stronger than ever before. It had enlisted under its banners an influential class of native born citizens of old whig antecedents, who, to their honor be it said, still remain faithful to the principles they espoused and the government they supported. It was further strengthened by the absence from the State or opposition of that element whose previous adherence to the party had brought it into disrepute. The causes combined to bring about the remarkable success achieved by the republican party in all the doubtful parishes, with one exception, even where the white population predominated, and which gave us a majority in the Legislature. Except where organized violence prevailed our State ticket carried every republican parish, and also a number of parishes which in the last Legislature were represented by democratic members.

EVENTS SUMMARIZED.

I briefly summarize the historical events that have since occurred. The General Assembly met on the 1st of January last, organized with a full legal quorum in both houses, passed laws which were approved by the Executive of the State, and on the 2d of January last canvassed and declared the vote for Governor. At this time the nation was agitated by doubt as to the result of the Presidential election. With the expectation that Samuel J. Tilden might possibly become President of the United States, and with no hope of success otherwise, my opponent in the late campaign established a mock legislature and went through the form of an inauguration in order that there might be a semblance of government which Mr. Tilden, if inaugurated, could possibly galvanize into vitality. In the few days that followed General Nicholls and his adherents were encouraged by the unexpected refusal of President Grant to recognize the State government or to respond to the constitutional call of the Legislature, though he questioned the legality of neither. On the 9th of January, before I had scarcely taken my seat in the executive chair, the White League rose in armed insurrection and by a coup de main took possession of the Supreme Court, arsenals and stations of the Metropolitan Police, all located at the capital. Then came orders from President Grant establishing a statu quo, the practical effect of which was to confirm the insurgents in the advantages they had gained and to prevent any effort to dispossess them. On the inauguration of President Hayes the State authorities made preparations to organize a militia force for the defence of the State government. General Nicholls' police seized upon the recruiting officers and imprisoned them for treason, without the benefit of bail or writ of habeas corpus.

THE PRESIDENT'S COMMISSION.

I telegraphed this fact to President Hayes, asking him if this was a violation of the statu quo, and if not whether a release of these men by force, all civil remedies having been exhausted, would be so considered. The President replied:—

"Your despatch of the 24th is received. The Secretary of War has telegraphed to General Augur. A commission will shortly visit Louisiana. In the meantime the President desires that the situation remain unchanged."

The Commission came. In the meantime the Nicholls government had crystallized into shape. So far from permitting the situation to remain unchanged, it had broken into the tax collector's office of the city, had taken forcible control of State institutions, and had strengthened itself on all sides. Notwithstanding this, however, the Commission found the legal Legislature still in session at the State House, and my title unassailed and unassailable, except by force. The result of their labors during the two weeks they remained here is known of all men. They induced a number of members of the legal House of Representatives to take seats in the Nicholls' house, thus giving it a Returning Board quorum.

Prior to the meeting of the Legislature the democrats claimed to have elected only sixty members of the House—one less than a quorum. One, at least, of the members so claimed by them was absent on the 1st of January last. No republican or independent leader would consent to act with the Nicholls House, and consequently, in order to obtain even an appearance of organization, they had been compelled to call to their aid three men defeated at the polls, whose election had not previously been claimed.

A PERTINENT INQUIRY.

The inquiry, therefore, seems pertinent in this connection. If a Returning Board quorum was so effective for Nicholls' claim why was it that such quorum was ignored while it remained faithful to the legal government of the State? That government had a Returning Board quorum from the day on which the General Assembly convened, and the Legislature duly organized remained in legal existence till disintegrated by direct action of the commission. This result having been achieved, it is a matter of record that congratulatory messages were exchanged between the President and his commission.

REMOVAL OF THE TROOPS.

On the following day the President, by a formal order, made public through the press, directed that the United States troops occupying a building in the vicinity of the State House should be removed to their barracks. Those troops had been placed there by President Grant without a formal call of the Governor, to protect the Returning Board while counting the vote for President. I firmly believe that had the legal government been recognized, it could have sustained itself without the intervention of troops; but the order for the withdrawal, issued under the circumstances and in the manner that it was issued, clearly indicated that even the moral support which the legal government of Louisiana should have received from the national administration would be denied. Had the General Assembly continued in session at the State House I should have deemed it my duty to have asserted and defended my government to the last, notwithstanding the withdrawal of the troops; but with the Legislature disintegrated, and no prospect of present success, I cannot task your tried fidelity by asking you longer to continue to aid me in the struggle I have thus far maintained.

COMPELLED TO YIELD.

I therefore announce to you that I am compelled to abstain for the present from all active assertion of my government. I waive none of my legal rights, but yield only to superior force. I am not wholly discouraged by the fact that one by one republican State governments of the South have been forced to succumb to force or fraud or policy. Louisiana, the first State rehabilitated after the war, is the last State whose government thus falls, and I believe it will be among the first to raise itself again to the plane of equal and honest representation. I advise that you maintain your party organization and continue to battle for the rights of citizenship and free government. We strive for these and not for men or men. It grieves me beyond expression that the heroic efforts you have made and the cruel sufferings you have undergone to maintain republican principles in Louisiana have had this bitter ending. To those who have so gallantly stood by me in the long contest we have passed through I tender my heartfelt thanks. To all I counsel peace, patience, fortitude, and a firm trust that eventually right and justice will prevail.

S. B. PACKARD, Governor.

PACKARD'S PARTING WITH HIS POLICE.

Packard's parting with his police before he left the building last night is said to have been quite an affecting affair. There were 450 of them, and every man wanted to shake hands and escort him home. Packard made them a speech, telling them if they could get any of the appropriation made for them by the Nicholls Legislature to take it. Their legal claims for pay for their services would still remain, as they had never been discharged from the force. Several of the most effective members of the force waited on Packard at his house to-day and told him they had been offered positions in the reorganized force, and they wanted his advice whether to accept or not. He recommended them to accept.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

COLUMBIA, April 25, 1877.

In the House of Representatives to-day a preamble and resolutions were passed declaring all the members of the late Mackey House to be in contempt, and referring their credentials to a joint committee, composed of the Committee on Judiciary and of Privileges and Elections, to take testimony and pass upon their respective titles. The committee have already begun their labors, and although their proceedings are strictly private it is understood that they will render a report to-morrow.

THE EXPECTED RESULT.

It is more than probable that, with the exception of two or three counties, the delegations will be admitted and sworn in. The counties which are likely to be excluded are Darlington, Charleston and Kershaw, aggregating twenty-four members.

Nothing of interest transpired in the Senate. The Governor's message will be delivered to-morrow.

AMUSEMENTS.

STEINWAY HALL.

Mme. Essipoff's second piano recital drew together last night a fairly numerous audience, in which the ladies were decidedly in the majority. The evening was devoted to the interpretation of works by Schumann, Schubert and Mendelssohn. Strict impartiality was shown in the selections, so as to display the beauties of each of the composers to the best advantage. In playing Mendelssohn's "Songs Without Words" Mme. Essipoff displayed delicacy of sentiment as well as exquisite skill. The criticism frequently made that she is cold and unsympathetic certainly cannot be justly applied in this instance. Her interpretation of Schumann's sonata in G minor was a delightful treat to all who appreciated artistic finish and refinement of execution. Perhaps it is this quality of refinement which is the distinguishing trait of Mme. Essipoff's performance and lends it its greatest attraction. Other performers have displayed greater power, but not one has exercised so subtle a charm over an audience. One does not tire of Mme. Essipoff's playing by repetition—a fact due to the simplicity and unpretentiousness of her method. On Friday night she gives her first Chopin recital, and we can promise all musical amateurs a delightful evening's entertainment.

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC NOTES.

"Paris by Night" and "The Siege of Paris" are about being removed from Philadelphia, where they have been on exhibition since the beginning of the Centennial.

The testimonial entertainment tendered to Mr. J. B. Pendleton last night at Chickering Hall was a great success. The large and fashionable audience enjoyed a pleasant evening's amusement.

Bartley Campbell has written a piece called "The Heroine in Rags," which is to be produced at the Arch Street Theatre, Philadelphia, early in May, with Miss Effie Ellsler, a young Western actress, in the leading part.

Mrs. Priscilla Cooper-Goodwyn, who is the granddaughter of Cooper, the tragedian, as well as of the late President Tyler, has won encomiums as a public reader in Philadelphia, and will shortly appear in that capacity in this city.

At the Chestnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, John Brougham's new play, "Slander; or, The Iron Cross," is to be brought out next Monday. During this week Colley Cibber's play of "She Would and She Would Not" has been revived at the Chestnut.

The contract of Mr. Max Strakosch with Miss Clara Louise Kellogg is for 100 nights of English opera, for which she will receive $100,000. She will visit California for the first time. The first performance in New York will occur in the early part of November. Among the artists engaged are Miss Anna Louise Cary, Signor Verdi, a young American baritone, and Mr. Conly.

DEATH FROM HYDROPHOBIA.

CAT BITES THAT WERE FATAL TO TWO HUMAN BEINGS AND A HORSE.

Coroner Croker yesterday held an inquest on the body of Robert W. Dickey, a youth of eighteen, residing at No. 235 East Thirtieth street, who died in terrible agony at Bellevue Hospital on April 17. The symptoms of his ailment indicated hydrophobia, which was the result of a cat bite received on January 2. As some of the indications of that complaint were lacking some medical authorities attributed his death to fright, and this they claimed was also the cause of Samuel Richardson's death, who was bitten by the same cat on the previous day, January 1. This theory, however, was somewhat shaken when it became known that a horse had died in horrible convulsions, which were clearly due to hydrophobia, and that the animal had also been the victim of the furious feline. From the verdict of fright in this case even the medical promulgators of that theory shrank, and so it was left to a Coroner's jury yesterday to decide what had caused Robert Dickey's death.

TESTIMONY OF MR. DICKEY.

David Dickey, the father of the deceased, was first called. He testified that his son came home sick on Saturday, April 14; he complained of a sore throat and pain in his head; the doctor visited him on Sunday at four P. M. and prescribed for him; the boy, on being questioned, said that he had been bitten by a cat in the hand, and he said that the member was swollen and was extremely painful; the nail came off one of the fingers, but the wound healed and seemed in no way dangerous. The boy took the medicine prescribed for him; the fact that Samuel Richardson had died of the bite of the same cat was known, but was not alluded to in the family, and no danger was anticipated; on Sunday, April 15, and on the following day, however, the boy became nervous and excited; he complained of his throat being sore and could swallow only with great difficulty; he displayed an aversion to water, and the sight of it set him trembling; about four A. M. on April 17 he began to froth at the mouth and snap at people, and the appearance of any liquid seemed to fill him with terror and loathing; finally he was attacked by convulsions, and on April 17 he died at Bellevue Hospital. The witness further testified that the boy was healthy; had never a day's illness previous to this attack; that he knew he was bitten by the same cat that had bitten Richardson, but had not said much about it; he was not a nervous boy and he had never received any previous injuries.

DR. BRUCE'S TESTIMONY.

Dr. Bruce testified that on April 5 he was called to attend Samuel Richardson, of Thirty-fourth street and Third avenue; the man was nervous and excited, and feared that he would die of hydrophobia; he said he had been bitten by a cat and he felt that the bite was fatal; when his mind was diverted from this painful reflection he became quiet, but at other times he was feverish and excited. Dr. Rawson, of Bellevue Hospital, said he believed hydrophobia was the cause of young Dickey's death, and corroborated the testimony of the father as to the symptoms manifested.

THE CAUSE OF THE HORSE'S DEATH.

Dr. Hopkins, a veterinary surgeon, stated that Mr. Cartwright's horse exhibited all the symptoms of hydrophobia, and finally died from it.

THE VERDICT.

The jury brought in a verdict of death from hydrophobia, the result of a cat bite.

MORE CENTENNIAL GOODS.

Messrs. G. A. Leavitt & Co. will begin the sale this afternoon of a fine collection of Japanese goods from the Centennial Exhibition. The collection embraces a very high class of bric-a-brac, consisting of antique and modern bronzes and lacquers, rare specimens of Satsuma, Kioto and Kaga ware; delicate cloisonne enamels, a large variety of teak wood and other cabinets. The collection is the property of M. Fukui, Japanese Commissioner to the Centennial, and all the week the Oriental faces we became so familiar with at the great Exhibition have been seen flitting around Clinton Hall. The sale promises to be one of unusual interest, as the collection is of exceptional quality.

RAPID TRANSIT.

Argument of Judge Emott Against the Hayes Bill to Stop It.

NECESSITY OF ELEVATED TRACKS.

Their Advantages to the Streets They Traverse, Making Them Business Thoroughfares.

EMINENT DOMAIN.

Rights of the Public in all Streets and Public Places.

AN OPPRESSIVE AND UNJUST BILL.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

ALBANY, April 25, 1877.

Before the Judiciary Committee of the Assembly Judge Emott delivered the following address, opposed to the Hayes bill, which would relegate rapid transit to the remote future. Judge Emott's remarks were listened to by a crowded audience, and the following is the text of his speech:—

After stating that he appeared in place of Judge Porter and represented the interests of the Gilbert Elevated Railway Company, he said that he had been furnished with the argument delivered by Judge Comstock a few days ago, and a copy of the bill. New York has been waiting for rapid transit for a great many years, and is waiting for it now. There was an argument made before you at some period that these proposed roads or any road of that character would be inadequate and insufficient for the needs of the city of New York and it was said that all that would answer the purpose would be an underground railway like to that which exists in Fourth avenue, and on which it is said persons are carried from Forty-second street to Harlem, three and a half miles, in six or ten minutes. These trains, which are now running on the New York Elevated Railway, occupy some ten minutes in running from Thirty-ninth street to the Battery, and this is a question of the character of the structure and character of the trains and kind of roads. It is unquestionable that if you could find another avenue like Fourth avenue, and then construct a road upon which you would have four tracks, you might have means of running trains that would stop as they run along and also express trains that might be run from the upper end of the island to the Battery in much less time than they can be run on the Elevated road, and less time than they could be run where they have to make stoppages. The difficulty is in the stoppages.

STOPPING AND STARTING.

The objection to the trains which are running on the New York Elevated Railway and those to be run on the Gilbert Elevated Railway is they are light trains, they are small engines, and they are trains consisting of two cars, and those trains can go off along slips, as they do, can make a stop, as they do, in about two minutes; whereas, to stop a train on an ordinary road would require nearly as much time as it requires to run that train from Forty-second street to Harlem. Unless you can get a whole avenue, running the whole length of the city, giving room for side tracks to make these stoppages, you cannot have any place where they will go through as quickly as those now running on the Elevated road. In the structure belonging to the Gilbert Elevated Railway Company, covering the whole width of the avenue there will be space for two extra tracks, and these answer the requirement which General Viele said was indispensable for rapid transit. Does anybody believe it is in the near future that anywhere in New York you can get an avenue for that purpose? Does anybody believe we can have a viaduct road? I can't see where, in the present condition of things, the money is to come from, and cannot see any hope for rapid transit in the city of New York except in the methods regarded not merely by popular opinion and enterprising capitalists best, but by the practical experience of this New York Elevated Railway Company, which demonstrated the thing could be done, and by the various commissions that have sat on this subject.

A PRACTICAL SOLUTION.

Here this road is carrying 10,000 passengers daily. People are going down from the extreme east side, from away over on the east side of the Park, because they can get from Fifty-ninth street down more easily and rapidly than they can in any other way. Here is a proposal to put the Greenwich Elevated Railway Company on a route by a commission selected under this Rapid Transit act. The committee was an intelligent body of men, composed of General Dix, Governor Seymour and other citizens of equal character, and when you say they have done wrong and made mistakes in that road you impugn the character of the men. Now you come in with a bill which by Judge Comstock's own admission would stop the construction of the roads; that is the true meaning and title of the bill. I read his argument in the Sixth avenue case and other cases and expect to hear him make substantially the same argument again to-morrow. That part of it which authorizes my clients to make connections, that is a special bill and is not a general law, is obnoxious to the constitution, is unconstitutional and void (referring to Judge Comstock's argument), and yet he comes in here and says he wants you to pass an act in relation to proceedings in courts, or, otherwise, to provide compensation to owners for property taken for public uses, to reach the case of two railroads that are in operation in the city of New York and to prevent their going any further in what he considers to be an injury to property owners.

SYMPATHY FOR THE POOR.

There is another remark he made in the course of his argument. He declared a great sympathy for poor people and asked whether anybody would propose to build such a road in Fifth avenue, and referred to the Husted bill in 1875, in which Fifth avenue and Broadway were excluded, and said that was throwing this road, the annoyance and inconvenience of this thing on the poor working men, and he was disposed that the aristocrats should have it in front of their houses. It is easy to say that, but I am sure such remarks can have no weight whatever with this committee. When a road is to be constructed isn't it so that it goes in that part of the town that is of the least value? Isn't there always one set of streets for residence and another where persons who have to earn their daily living have to reside, and property is of less value where these roads go? In New York there must be avenues for business and avenues for residences, and I say if you look into the investigations taken before various commissions or testimony given before you, or if you go to New York and examine for yourself the operation of any elevated railway business you will find it is not injurious to property along the line of the street where that road goes. You and I could not live in that street, but Mr. Chonout testified he had lived for a summer and winter upon Ninth avenue where that Elevated Railroad went within fourteen feet of his windows, and he experienced no inconvenience from it. He had a family. Of course, he said, he would rather live where there was not a road. Also would I. I wouldn't like to live in Fourth avenue, where I would have to move my carriage to get out of the road of a horse car. There must be a road to furnish these conveniences, and some of the public must suffer for the benefit of others. A man coming to the city must expect in return for the benefits and advantages he enjoys to suffer some inconvenience, to pay for those privileges.

SACREDNESS OF SECOND STORIES.

It is said these elevated railroads are going to destroy the sacredness of the second story in buildings. What is the sacredness in the second story? No one thought that of the first story. It is thought when you elevate your railroads to the second story it is an invasion, and should be stopped. Suppose you had what Judge Comstock's clients have devised—these two story horse cars—out of which, as they go along at snail's pace, a man can see twice as much in the windows of Sixth avenue as they can riding twenty miles an hour on the elevated road. The truth is a man who goes to live on a frequented street where the stream of travel is flowing up and down continually must take the consequences and expect, while having the advantages of living in a great avenue, to taste the inconveniences.

WHAT THE POOR WANT.

In regard to the poor people, in the first place you go and ask them what they want and they will tell you if you give them some contrivance to get to their work ten or fifteen minutes faster than they do now they would give up any privacy they now enjoy or would be deprived of.

CHARACTER OF STREETS CHANGED.

In the next place, the results of these roads may be to turn these avenues into routes of travel and traffic in place of residence. Who lives in Broadway? It is a street of stores and business places. Greenwich street is becoming the same thing. I would like to have you go and compare the present condition of Ninth avenue and its history since this road has been completed through it, with Seventh avenue, between Sixth and Eighth. Seventh avenue is the most miserable street in the city. There is no growth in it. South Fifth avenue is in the same condition, and, if it is ever brought into a place of business, it will be by this road. Ninth avenue has been made a business street by the operation of this very road, by the development of the side streets. When you make it easy for men of moderate means to live up town the side streets become the place of residence, and those others would become places of business. Now you may ask Mr. Cushman, a large proprietor on Ninth avenue, and he will confirm what I have been stating to you, speaking as a property holder as well as a citizen of New York.

LAW OF THE STREETS IN NEW YORK.

This bill is to change the whole law and constitution, substantially, of the State of New York in regard to the rights of adjacent property owners and the construction of railroads; but would change it solely with reference to elevated railroads in cities, and particularly to these two elevated railroads in the city of New York. Judge Comstock, in his argument before this committee, said the streets of New York were to be divided into three classes, the first of which were the streets made by the Dutch government. He said it was settled by the Court of Appeals that the title fee was in the government, and now was in the city of New York. He said there was no such streets, except a slight number below Wall street. Nobody lives on those streets. He seemed to think those were of no consequence. He spoke of another class of streets, those built under an act of 1837; and said, in reference to those, there could be no doubt the fee of the streets was in the adjacent owners. Then one of these elevated railroads cannot put a post in the street without invading the property of the man before whose house it is put. They can't do it, unless they get a law from the Legislature to do it, without compensation. According to the law of the State of New York a man is not to be compensated unless his property is "taken." Judge Comstock demonstrates in every case he speaks of that the property is taken. He has a remedy in the court. The bill does not propose to change the measure of damages. It puts in the hands of a man who has not now any claims at all the right to entirely stop the building of the road until he gets damages from the company.

Mr. Ruggles—Does not this bill propose to give damages for the depreciation of adjacent property?

Judge Emmett—I don't know. If it does it is wrong. Judge Comstock in his speech then went on to say there was a third class of streets, laid out according to the act of 1813, and states he was aware there had been decisions which had given currency to the opinion that the title to these streets was in the city of New York, and the owners had nothing which would entitle them to compensation. He said that was all wrong, and in point of fact the adjacent owners there had a right to compensation for the injury done to them by laying down the tracks in front of their houses. If he is right there what legislation does he want? I say take those three classes of streets and they embrace all the streets in the city of New York, and I have demonstrated that his clients have got now the power to redress all the wrongs which they suffer.

CITY STREETS DIFFER FROM COUNTRY ROADS.

This bill is applicable to the State of New York. The city must have and does exercise far greater rights of property over the soil of the streets than is held in reference to country highways. If you own a house in the country the public has a free right to walk and drive over the highway, but that is all. They cannot excavate and build vaults into it. You can. Every great city needs not only the surface of its streets, but it needs the soil, to put in water pipes, gas pipes, fire alarm, telegraph poles and lamp posts, and excludes the adjacent owners from their use of the street. No one, no matter who he is, can build vaults under these streets without authority from the city government, and paying for the privilege; and it should be so. The time is coming when the city government will possess the rights of the streets to build just such structures as these. (Quoting from the bill.) "No person or corporation shall be allowed to construct, build or use any elevated railway." It is not that the New York Elevated Railroad Company cannot build, but cannot use, "except on previous compensation to be determined in manner provided by this act."

THE RULE OF DAMAGES.

There is no manner provided for it in this act. It is suggested that the balance of the bill is to make a new rule of damages. The rule of damages has been settled in this city. These streets have been taken by virtue of eminent domain. So far as the property is taken or directly affected, there is a right to compel compensation. Judge Comstock got a judgment for a client on the ground that he owned the soil and putting the road there was taking his property and, of course, injuriously affecting it. This bill opens the door to everybody—mortgagees, lessees, or otherwise—for their injury, not injury to their property. There was one man claimed there was a horrible stench arising from the engines. There is nothing of the kind at all. There can be none. They use only anthracite coal and oil, and that would cause no perceptible smell. Another case is where a woman swore her chairs and furniture were spoiled by her leaving the windows open, and something, she knew not what, caused it. These people are to go into court and bring an action. The company cannot do anything. They cannot proceed, they cannot have damage assessed because it is not property. They are to go and sue, and the moment these people sue they are to get an injunction, and this bill provides the road shall not go on until it is settled. It does not provide for an appeal. When any party thinks he has a right to be paid he brings an action and gets an injunction and the road stops. "Shall depreciate the value." How wild it is to get an injunction and stop the road! "In the vicinity," anywhere near, the whole block or next avenue or where? If you are going to make a law of this kind make it for the whole State. I should be very glad, speaking for myself or for those in whose affairs I have an interest, to have a law of this kind applicable to the New York Central road or others. They are going in front of dwelling houses with their noise at night. That was a much more serious injury, and came nearer to the premises than anything suggested in this bill with those owners "authorizing people in the vicinity to bring their actions." Those in the vicinity who are affected by its use and enjoyment; this gentleman who smelt something bad, and the woman with her mohair furniture. They can maintain an action to recover damages against the company, and all such actions shall be tried by jury, and not otherwise, and they shall give such compensation as they believe proper. And then it goes on to the effect that after trial and verdict rendered it will be until such judgment shall be paid in full before any such elevated railroad shall be constructed, run or operated.

A PERMANENT STOP.

If that is not a bill to stop elevated railroads in the city of New York I don't know what it is. Whenever the construction of any elevated railway shall be begun, any one whose property, real or personal, corporate or incorporate, is likely to be injured or to be depreciated by the construction, maintenance, operation and use of any portion of such elevated railroad, any person interested in it shall be entitled on bringing action, to an injunction, which shall be granted, to restrain and prohibit such construction of the elevated railroad until such compensation is ascertained and paid, and there is no way of ascertaining it except by this man's action, which he can delay as long as he pleases, and until that time the use and construction of the road is stopped.

THE LAW OF EMINENT DOMAIN.

It creates new remedies which are totally destructive to the construction and operation of these elevated railways. If you are disposed to introduce such a sweeping change as that you ought to make it for the whole State. The law of eminent domain is settled. There is not a serious difference between those of this country and of England. It is not there by the written act of the constitution, but it is observed by Parliament, and it is settled here, that where you directly affect real estate, where you destroy its value or use by the construction of a railroad or public work, you do take that man's property, and can be compelled to give compensation for it. These questions as to the construction of these roads are all of them in the courts. The question of the constitutionality of this in the Court, and to-morrow the whole time of the Court of Appeals, and the next day, is to be occupied by arguments on this subject, whether those roads can be prosecuted under these acts; whether the act of 1875, known as the Rapid Transit act is constitutional or unconstitutional, and in addition to that suits have been brought against those companies, and they have been compelled to stop operations until the matter has been gone through with in the courts. All these questions are under adjudication. The Court of Appeals is to determine the rights of the property owners and railroads. I think the committee should not pass on this question while it is being adjudicated in the courts. I say to apply one law to those two railroads, and not to the State at large, is making a distinction which is not called for or justifiable. If you should come to the conclusion that the rule of damages to be paid or assessed on taking property by public works should be extended, make it a general law, make it apply to all classes of corporations and all works throughout the State. Don't discriminate against these necessary public works which are so necessary to the city of New York. If there be a necessity for this proposed change in the law, it is a necessity which applies everywhere, and just as much to the great railroads that traverse the surface of the State, and, I may say, to horse railroads, as it does to the proposed elevated railroads in the streets of New York.

BROOKLYN RAPID TRANSIT.

The representatives of the Long Island Railroad Company, with a number of gentlemen who own property on Atlantic avenue, Brooklyn, along which it is proposed to run the new steam railroad, met Attorney General Fairchild yesterday, in this city, for the purpose of conferring with him as to an injunction prohibiting the construction of the new road which was granted last week. The property owners present were J. Carson Brevoort, Harvey Farrington, A. S. Barnes, Henry Hentz and L. S. Burnham. Simeon Stern was also present as counsel. E. B. Hinsdale appeared as counsel for the Long Island Railroad and Corporation Counsel De Witt for the city of Brooklyn. President Richardson, of the Atlantic Avenue Railroad Company, was also present. The Attorney General was urged by Mr. Hinsdale and Corporation Counsel De Witt to consent to the vacation of the injunction, which was granted last week, on the ground that the road was an actual necessity, as Brooklyn had within the past few years, made such rapid strides in extending her limits and increasing her population. On the other hand, Mr. Stern, counsel for the protesting property owners, argued the injustice that would be done to his clients should the road be built. The Attorney General finally agreed to suspend the enforcement of the temporary injunction, without prejudice to either party, in further prosecution of the suits. This morning, therefore, a large force of laborers will be put at work on the road by the Long Island Railroad company, who will use every effort to have the work completed in a short time. An order to show cause why an injunction should not be granted prohibiting the further prosecution of the work still exists, and is returnable on Saturday next before Judge Gilbert, of the Kings County Supreme Court. It is not thought, however, that it will be granted then, as he has once refused it. It was stated by Mr. Richardson, President of the Atlantic Avenue Railroad Company, last evening, that no further interference with the laying of the rails of the new road was apprehended.

DEPARTMENT OF DOCKS.

A meeting of the Board of Dock Commissioners was held yesterday afternoon in the departmental offices, Duane street. Commissioners Wales and Westervelt were present. In the matter of the liability of the city government for alleged damages to the interests of private parties by the dumping of snow and ice on their properties during the past winter, Corporation Counsel Whitney gave his official opinion to the Dock Commissioners.

AN OPINION WHICH DECIDES NOTHING.

Mr. Whitney stated that during the past season the Bureau of Street Cleaning, of the Police Department and others were permitted by the Board governing the Department of Docks to dump clean snow and ice removed from the streets into the slips along the water fronts. It is claimed by the National Steamship Company, owning and occupying pier 44 North River, that said dumping was done at the northerly side of pier 43 North River to an extent sufficient to push the mud alongside thereof, by the weight of the material deposited, over to and into the trench recently dredged by this company, along the southerly side of pier 44, in the northerly half of the slip. The Corporation Counsel is of opinion that the Department of Docks has no right to expend any portion of the proceeds received from the sale of dock bonds to pay for the cost of the dredging alleged to have become necessary by reason of such dumpings of snow and ice removed from the streets. And if upon the facts and law applicable to the matter the company has any claim against the city it can be adjusted and paid through the Finance Department or through the courts.

For the week ending April 24 the receipts and expenditures by the department were:—Available funds remaining in the Financial Department to the credit of the Dock Board, $138,818 05; disbursements—rolls for payment of labor corresponding to two weeks ending April 14, repairs, field corps (engineer-in-chief), floating property, scow men, claims on account of construction, annual expenses, &c., $25,578 24, leaving at this date a balance on hand of $113,239 81. In addition, the Board, acting in a fiduciary capacity, collected dock and slip rent—which was placed to the credit of the sinking fund—to the amount of $1,905 25.

The Union Ferry Company put before the Board an amended copy of its complaint, asking the department to fix the upset price to be paid to the city in future for the use of its ferries. The matter was allowed to lie over.

THE GARBAGE NUISANCE.

CITY ISLAND POLLUTED BY THE ABOMINATIONS OF THE SCOWS OF THE STREET CLEANING DEPARTMENT.

The oyster fishermen of City Island are indignant with the Street Cleaning Department of New York. During the last three years the garbage of the city has been dumped far too near the shores of the island, and the fisheries have suffered more or less thereby. During the last few weeks, however, this grievance has been intensified by the actual dumping of the worst description of the refuse of the streets of the city, including the remains of deceased animals, upon the oyster beds. Last week the oystermen remonstrated in a forcible, but peaceful manner, with the foreman of the scows, and since then there has been a discontinuance of this practice so far as the oyster beds are concerned. The nuisance is, however, continued on the shore at Frog's Point, and every tide washes the entrails of dead animals on the beach. The inhabitants are alarmed and fear that when the heated term sets in there will be considerable sickness on the island if the nuisance is persisted in. Indignation meetings have been held, and the State Legislature has been applied to for an amendment to the present law that governs this matter on City Island, by which it will be made a misdemeanor for any person to dump garbage within certain limits of the shore. At present redress can only be obtained by a civil process, and the oystermen feel that they have not money enough to contend in a lawsuit with one of the departments of the city government. This dumping is very frequently done in the night, when there is no one to detect the offenders. Hitherto the inhabitants have been unable to obtain any assistance for the redress of their grievances from the Street Cleaning Department, and their hopes seem to be centred in the obtaining of the legislation referred to.

HYMEN'S TORCH

Marriage of Mr. Gordon Cumming to Miss Eames.

REAL ORANGE BLOSSOMS AND CAMELLIAS.

Brilliant Gathering of Notables in a Historical Edifice.

DETAILS OF THE TOILETS.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

WASHINGTON, April 25, 1877.

Epiphany Church was the centre of social excitement here to-night owing to the interest attaching to the nuptials of Mr. Gordon Cumming with Miss Eames. The throng inside and out of the church, the sea of carriages and the tall spire of the church, surmounted by its solid gilt cross, glittering in the brightest moonlight, made a notable and romantic scene.

A FAMOUS CHURCH EDIFICE.

The sacred edifice, which is situated on G street, just above the Foundry, or President's Church, is historic with annals of famous marriages celebrated within its walls. For twenty years it has been the scene of the marriages of many of America's distinguished sons and daughters of eminent families, and as well of the union of foreign diplomats, ministers and secretaries of legation with our native born dames. Its clergy have been the leaders of Episcopalianism in the national capital from the time of Rev. Dr. Hall, now rector of Holy Trinity Church in Brooklyn, down to the ministry of the popular Dr. Watkins and its present learned rector, the Rev. Dr. Paret. Then, too, the congregation is largely composed of the aristocracy of old residents, whose antecedents go back to the days of Washington himself. This circle is full of life and refined joy. The innocent revelries of children's festivals have been a conspicuous feature of interest among them.

THE NUPTIAL CEREMONIES.

The wedding this evening was no exception to the brilliant record of the past, and exceeded in interest all others, perhaps from its being known to be a love match. Cards of admission were necessary to obtain entrance, and every seat in the nave was early filled with a fashionable assemblage of the crème de la crème of society. The chancel was environed by a floral arch twelve feet high, from the centre of which hung the white marriage bell of buds and lilies and clinging petals with a crimson tongue. It being St. Mark's Day the inner chancel was in full bloom, each panel of the evangelists resting as it were on a plot of daisies and lilies. Vases of rare bouquets, with trailing vines, filed the sides of the altar, sending out a delicious fragrance from real orange blossoms and camellias, and forming a lovely parterre of background to the most elegant group of humanity.

THE GRAND ENTRY.

The twelve bridesmaids soon entered the broad aisle preceded by the six gentlemen ushers as follows:—Mr. Woodbury Blair, Mr. Seaton Munroe, Mr. Frank Riggs, Mr. Robert Chew, Lieutenant Miller, United States Navy; Mr. James Wyatt. At the foot of the altar they parted and formed an angle with six bridesmaids and three ushers on either side.

THE BRIDESMAIDS.

The bridesmaids were as follows:—

First Bridesmaid—Miss Lulie, daughter of General Meigs, United States Army.

Second Bridesmaid—Miss Maud Campbell Gouverneur, cousin of the bride.

Third Bridesmaid—Miss Annie Freeman, daughter of General Freeman and niece of Mrs. Coleman.

Fourth Bridesmaid—Miss Adele Thayer, of Boston, daughter of Mr. John Thayer. Her mother is the daughter of the Hon. Francis Granger, of Canandaigua.

Fifth Bridesmaid—Miss Jenny Riggs, daughter of Mr. George Riggs, of Washington.

Sixth Bridesmaid—Miss Minnie Stout, granddaughter of Commodore Aulick and niece of Mrs. ex-Secretary Robeson.

Seventh Bridesmaid—Miss Minnie von Bokkelyn, New York.

Eighth Bridesmaid—Miss Sallie Phelps, daughter of the Commissioner of the District.

Ninth Bridesmaid—Miss Grace Bigelow, daughter of Hon. John Bigelow, ex-Minister to France.

Tenth Bridesmaid—Miss Mary Thornton.

Eleventh Bridesmaid—Miss Fanny Thornton, daughter of the British Minister.

Twelfth Bridesmaid—Miss Edith Fish, daughter of the Hon. Hamilton Fish.

At the altar appeared the Rev. Dr. Paret and the groom with his best man, Mr. Denys, of the British Legation.

THE BRIDE.

The bride looked as beautiful as the traditional bride ever does. Her veil completely enveloped her, the coronal of orange blossoms shining plainly through it. She held a magnificent bouquet in her hand, and, as she walked slowly up the aisle upon her brother's arm, was seen by all to great advantage.

THE MARRIAGE.

The ceremony was short, and the vows were uttered in almost inaudible tones. The benediction having been pronounced, the bridegroom, Mr. Alastair Penrose Gordon Cumming, with his bride, now Mrs. Frances Campbell Eames Cumming, moved out slowly through the long aisles, followed by the bridesmaids, and were driven away in carriages.

NOTABLES PRESENT.

Among the distinguished persons assembled in the front pews were Governor John Lee Carroll and family, of Maryland; Mrs. Charles Eames, the mother of the bride; the Hon. Robert C. Winthrop and Mrs. Winthrop, Hon. George Bancroft, the British Minister and Lady Thornton; the Hon. William L. Gouverneur and Mrs. Gouverneur, the Misses Rose and Ruth, twin daughters, with Miss Marie Diehl, of Frederick, Maryland; the Hon. Montgomery Blair and Mrs. Blair, with Miss Blair; Mrs. ex-Secretary Robeson, Captain Gore Jones and Mrs. Jones, with Mrs. Plunkett; General and Mrs. Meigs and daughters, with Mrs. Mongomery Meigs; Admiral Porter and the Misses Porter, with Lieutenant Logan; General Palmer and Miss Palmer, Mrs. Colman and the Misses Freeman, General John G. Parke, Mrs. General Ricketts and the Misses Beckwith, with the Hon. Peter Parker and Mrs. Parker, Miss Randolph, Mrs. Archie Campbell, Mrs. Van Rensselaer Berry, the Misses Loring, General Hunter and family, Mrs. Stewart, Mrs. Neagle, the French Minister, Mrs. Philip Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Baldwin and Mrs. Babcock, née Townsend, of Albany; Mrs. and Miss Riggs, Mrs. John Bigelow, wife of the ex-Minister to France.

THE TOILETTES.

The display of toilettes by the ladies present at the ceremony was an unusually fine one.

Mrs. Eames, mother of the bride, wore black silk and black lace drapery; Mrs. Gouverneu, black, with white lace about her throat; the Misses Gouverneur, white tarletan; Miss Diehl, a tall, graceful and stylish figure, wore white, with lilac silk trimmings. Her brown hair was braided low on her neck.

Mrs. Robert C. Winthrop looked superbly in a mauve silk and point lace overdress, with velvet court train square corsage, point lace shawl. Her coiffure was white feathers, diamond tiara, earrings, necklace. She was literally a blaze of precious stones.

The wife of Sir Edward Thornton was in the lilac silk, with point lace overdress, which was so admired at the White House state dinner. She wore a light chip evening hat, with white flowers and long white lace scarf. Her ornaments were diamonds.

The Misses Freeman were in pale blue silk, Damascene overdress, white lace sleeves, hair in puffs, with roses.

Mrs. General Meigs was in black silk, with point lace head dress.

Mrs. Montgomery Blair appeared in black silk, with black lace overdress and evening hat. Her daughter, a very pretty blonde and much admired, wore white lace overdress. Her son, Mr. Woodbury Blair, the first usher, commanded attention by his fine appearance.

Mrs. ex-Secretary Robeson was notable in her iron grey hair and regal style. She wore white with brightly-tinted trimmings.

Mrs. General Ricketts wore a parti-colored silk, highly embroidered in green, trimmed with black lace and a tint of blue silk, an exquisite dress.

The Misses Beckwith wore white and cream colored silks, with blue trimmings.

The Misses Porter wore pale peach blossomed silks, with Valenciennes lace garniture.

Mrs. Peter Parker looked nobly in black velvet and evening hat. She bears the distinction of having been the first foreign lady domiciled among the Chinese. When Dr. Parker represented the United States government as its Minister he founded an ophthalmic hospital in Canton.

Mrs. John Bigelow, whose daughter was fourth bridesmaid, wore a rich garnet velvet.

Mrs. William Baldwin was attired in pearl colored silk with Spanish blade trimmings.

Mrs. J. Bosnan Kerr and daughter wore elegant silks, presented by the former Minister from Japan.

MARRIAGE OF HON. CHARLES ADAMS TO MISS JUDITH CRITTENDEN COLEMAN.

WASHINGTON, April 25, 1877.

Hon. Charles H. Adams, late member of Congress from the Albany (N. Y.) district, was married to-day in this city to Miss Judith Crittenden Coleman, of Louisville, Ky., a granddaughter of John J. Crittenden. The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. William C. Young, of Chicago, a cousin of the bride, at the residence of her uncle, General Crittenden, on Connecticut avenue. There was a large and fashionable attendance. The newly married couple will visit California on their bridal tour.

LINES OF NEW DEPARTURE.

Views of Leading Statesmen, North and South.

SLOW GROWTH OF PARTIES.

Republicans Confident the President Has No Wish for New Organizations.

NO AMBITION AS A PARTY LEADER.

General Gordon, of Georgia, Expresses the Hope of the Southern Masses in the Success of Peace.

WASHINGTON, April 24, 1877.

Senator Windom, of Minnesota, anticipating the call for an extra session of Congress, has remained in Washington since the adjournment of the Senate. He is a general reader of the New York dailies and has learned something of the growing sentiment of the country in favor of a new party organization. As he belongs, however, to the radical wing of the republican party, but little could be expected from him in regard to the HERALD's proposition to create a new party from the better elements of existing political organizations When his attention was called to the leading points in the recent article published in the HERALD his allegiance to the republican party was at once made manifest. He said:—"Oh, no; you cannot expect President Hayes to take any such stand as is proposed, but I am willing to wait in patience before expressing a positive opinion as to the policy already adopted. Until Congress meets it would not be wise to criticise that course, and I do not care to talk upon the subject."

PARTIES THE GROWTH OF YEARS.

Senator Windom said he was not advised of any change in the sentiment of the people of his State on maintaining intact the old republican organization. A new party could not be manufactured to order, and in the long history of American politics there had been but few, very few, political revolutions. Those were the growth of years. It was not in the power of any man, not even the President, in our day to control a party organization. On the contrary his own feelings were against slacking party lines—that is, the republican party—but if the old whig element in the democratic ranks was restless it could find repose within the fold of the administration.

It was evident that the action of President Hayes toward South Carolina and Louisiana was too fresh in Senator Windom's mind to allow him to freely express his feelings on that policy. In any effort looking to the creation of a new party the Senator will be found clinging to the old party as tenaciously as Packard holds on to the title of Governor.

HAYES HAS NO IDEA OF WRECKING THE REPUBLICAN PARTY.

Senator Paddock, a republican from Nebraska, when asked for his views on the HERALD's "Lines of New Departure," said:—"In the first place I must commend the HERALD for the good work it has undertaken. A paper with its large circulation and far reaching influence will create a healthy sentiment throughout the country; and as but very few will be found opposed to the President's plan for establishing a lasting peace in the South there is no telling what may grow out of the agitation of the subject. But I must take issue with the HERALD when it asserts that the administration has thrown aside Morton, Blaine and Cameron, and when the Senate again meets I think you will find that the men so prominently named, with perhaps one exception, will not be recalcitrant members of our body. They will say, with wisdom too, 'Let us wait a little before we set our faces against the President's policy.'"

"But you do not suppose Morton, Cameron and Blaine will vote to seat a democratic Senator from Louisiana in place of Kellogg? Will that not involve a departure such as the President appears to foresee must come?"

"I see," replied Mr. Paddock, "what you are anxious to learn from me, and I will frankly say to you that in all probability the vote of our side will be divided. You, of course, do not doubt for an instant but that the vote of the democratic members of the Senate will be against seating Kellogg; and it is, perhaps, equally certain that some republicans will vote with the democrats. With our number nearly evenly divided a few republican votes will be all that is necessary to reject Kellogg. That much I grant you, but that would not give the President the slightest hope for creating a working majority on his side. For instance, I am one of those who believe that the policy already successfully inaugurated in the South ought to have been commenced long ago. In that respect I may not represent the sentiments of my constituents; still, it has my unqualified approval. Now, what advantage, therefore, would it be to the President were he disposed to establish a new basis of public policy, as referred to in the HERALD articles? What good would it do the country?"

"But would it not be an act of wise statesmanship to undertake the task by a good beginning here on the plan proposed by the HERALD, and so let the agitation in Congress be felt throughout the country?"

NO GENERAL OPPOSITION.

"That is a question not so easily answered. I will begin by saying that I do not believe that President Hayes has any idea of wrecking the republican party. Your premises, therefore, are not sound, and, as I have already remarked, I cannot believe there will be any general opposition to the President's policy, at least within the next six months. The Senators who are expected to make war will say, 'A little, and yet a little while, before we declare war within our party. Let us see if this policy is going so succeed.' I concede there is a possibility of the republican party losing its organization, but when that time comes it will be equally true of the democratic party. In other words when the parties break there will be as little left of democracy as republicanism. But that dissolution will never arise from the pacification of the South. It is not in the power of the administration to create a new organization on that basis. Let us speak of the sentiment as it is freely uttered here in Washington—Has the restoration of peace in South Carolina and Louisiana changed the heart of a single democrat? Do we not hear on all sides that the President has only done his duty, and, what I admit myself, should have been done months ago? What other element of weakness can you point out at present in our ranks to excite a suspicion of an open rupture with the President or the necessity for creating a new following?"

"You have no faith, then, in the President's purpose to secure the organization of the House?"

HAYES NOT AMBITIOUS AS A PARTY LEADER.

"No, not the slightest. Though I believe President Hayes is a good politician—yes, the greatest in our day, if greatness is to be measured by success—yet I cannot conceive of his undertaking any such movement as is attributed to him. Nor is it in his character to be ambitious as a party leader. You know what he said in his inaugural. 'He serves his party best who serves his country best,' and my interpretation of his acts is that he is cementing the republican party more firmly than at any time since the war, and of its organization he will never lose sight. It is very easy to say that he has thrown aside prominent men in our party; that they will do this and that. But will they do so? No, no. President Hayes wouldn't if he could undertake to perfect the good work he has begun outside his own party. The man is constitutionally incapacitated from swerving from his party faith. He was a disciplined soldier in its ranks many years ago, and in public life his character as a republican has been fully rounded until I say it is not in his nature to proceed in any other way than in close communion with the republican party. You know what he has invariably said to those who deprecated his course in South Carolina:—'I believe it is the sentiment of my party, as it reaches me from all parts of the North, that federal interference shall no longer throttle State governments in the South.' It is there he takes issue with some of the leading republicans; but he supports his faith with the declaration that it is not an opinion learned since entering the White House, but known while he was Governor of Ohio, and when the political horizon was free from clouds—uncertainties as to the Presidential contest. Now, for the rest of the national questions, there is not one but that can be embodied in the platform of existing parties. It is useless to talk of free trade. One hundred million dollars in gold must annually be raised to meet the interest on our public debt, and so long as the credit of the country is to be maintained, so long it will be absolutely necessary to have a tariff of more than a protective nature."

Senator Paddock admitted that President Hayes was a strong man for the good work indicated in the HERALD's editorials, and though having the sagacity of a great leader, his estimate of the man was such that he could only see him as the great President who will make the annals of the republican party in a time of peace not less renowned than its record during the perilous days of the rebellion. Wishing the HERALD good fortune in its effort to strengthen the cause of peace in the South and prosperity in all sections of the land, he bade me good afternoon.

GENERAL GORDON SEES NO NEED OF A NEW PARTY.

Senator Gordon, of Georgia, has been prominently before the country during the past two months as one of the most valiant of the Southern Senators pleading the cause of his people in South Carolina and Louisiana. Naturally he takes the deepest interest in everything pertaining to the welfare of his section and has not failed to read the HERALD articles counselling the President to raise the standard of a new party whose platform should broadly embrace every section and interest of the whole country. I called upon him this afternoon and plainly stated the object of the visit. General Gordon said, in his usual frank and pleasant manner:—"I will take very great pleasure in talking to you upon the subject, as I have no secrets in matters of public duty. It is true I have not given the recent utterances of the press upon the subject of a new party organization much thought, and perhaps mainly for the reason that, while there does not appear to be any necessity for such a step, one does not care to lose time in philosophizing upon the subject. But the HERALD brings it home more forcibly than I have yet seen it stated. If I do not approve all the HERALD suggests, there need be no occasion for a quarrel on that score. Now, I most sincerely hope that neither the President nor his counsellors will consider the subject of building up an administration party, or any other party. We are too recently emancipated, so to speak, from the thraldom of unfriendly influences to wish for any radical change anywhere. I am fully satisfied from what I know of public sentiment—and I think I know it pretty thoroughly—the whole South will support in this administration whatever measures and policies it would have supported if Mr. Tilden were President. Now, in direct answer to your question as to what the South will think of the HERALD's effort to perpetuate good will, peace and prosperity in our midst, I will say that our belief is that if the President will pursue the course I am very hopeful he will pursue, looking only to the pacification of this section—the elimination of the Southern question from American politics, by giving to the South all her rights of local self-government, and I include in that not only the right to control her domestic affairs free from federal interference, but the right to have federal law administered by people who have common interest among us, and who are amenable to public opinion in the Southern States—I say if this policy is carried out that President Hayes will have all the conservative masses of this country at his back. This being true, what need of raising the question of another party formation? He will be during his term on that basis the most popular President the country could have, and as he is committed to one term he could not expect a greater reward for his faithful administration of national affairs on that platform."

THE HOPE OF THE MASSES.

"You do not, then, anticipate any great effort to control the organization of the next House in the interest of the administration?"

"I do not know what effort may be made, but as I see the HERALD urges the President to establish himself with both houses, I must say that I should regard it as a great misfortune to the country if the President, or this administration, to make the application more full, should be influenced in any degree by the purpose of organizing the next House of Representatives, either by electing a Speaker expressly committed by party associations or otherwise to the administration. The strength of the President with the great masses North and South is the hope which has sprung up in the hearts of the Southern people from the measures he has already inaugurated and pressed to successful conclusion. This hope is due, not to the idea of a new party, or the necessity for new party organizations, but to the belief of those people who are not seeking office but the good of the country. And though I had it not in mind when you asked me about strengthening the President in Congress with good working majorities, I see that I have answered that point in one of the HERALD's editorials where it refers to the great mass of the American people—democrats or republicans—who are more anxious to have peace throughout the country than to perpetuate existing organizations. Following this idea, then, the President having limited his public service to one term will seek to fill the offices of the whole country with the best men, regardless of party affiliations; and the masses will certainly stand by him in doing this. In other words, during the administration of President Hayes, what need of agitating the country about a new party if everybody is pleased with the purposes of the administration. And let me continue on that point as to one term for the President. The fact that President Hayes has been able to withstand the pressure from the extremists of his own party has increased my own deep conviction that the one term idea is the true one for the future of this country. There is no one thing I can think of which would tend so much to elevate the tone of successive administrations in this country as to have each future President inspired by the sole ambition of leaving all parties commending his administration at its termination."

CAN THE SOUTH BE TRUSTED?

"It is asserted by some of the radical members of the republican party, General, that the South cannot be trusted, and they combat the idea of a weakening their party on that account."

"Well, sir, all I can say on that point is that so far as giving peace to the South is concerned, nothing could be so effective, not all the bayonets of the federal army, as to have the South feel that there was a repose in their good faith by the appointment to all the federal offices in their midst of men who had their full confidence and sympathies. This one act alone would of necessity bring our whole people into closer and more kindly relations to the general government, making them feel that it was in truth their government. Now, in regard to the sensitive and jealous public opinion in the North about the war, I have no apprehension of the bloody shirt issue in the future if the President persists in his declared policy toward the South. Whenever the Southern people, who, it is true, are sensitive under oppression, feel that their oppressions are at end, there can by no possibility be any longer excited in the South those race conflicts which gave excuse for the agitation at the North. The Southern people are neither inhuman nor devoid of sense. Their impulses and their interests alike dictate a policy of kindness, of protection and of elevation toward the black race. With the end of federal interference comes the end of race conflicts in the South and of bloody shirt agitation in the North. The other questions alluded to in the HERALD as the possible basis of a new party are common to existing organizations, and on some of them there are honest differences of opinion. As to the main points, however, I hope I have fully answered your question."

THE HAYES REVOLT.

Detroit Free Press:—"'Stalwart republicans' of the Blaine stripe will be more indignant than ever since Packard has been treated just as Chamberlain was. Hayes will probably hear more than once from the lips of republicans, at the approaching session of Congress, that Packard was as much entitled to the Governorship of Louisiana as Hayes was to the Presidency of the United States, and his action will be denounced by his party friends as a piece of treachery of the basest kind."

Raleigh (N. C.) News:—"If Mr. Hayes inaugurated his Southern policy for the purpose of dividing the solid South he must have learned ere this that it is a failure. The South, rid of the carpet-bagger and the federal soldiers on police duty, will be more united than ever in opposition to the republican party. The only political effect so far of 'the Southern policy' is the splitting of the republican party North into two irreconcilable factions, and we already have, as a result of this division, the assurance of a grand democratic victory in 1880 if we will hold a united front to the enemy from this on. Ambitious schemers, independent fellows, men who care not from what quarter of the political heavens the manna of office cometh so it comes, will endeavor to create dissensions among us, but the people will not be misled."

Augusta (Ga.) Sentinel:—"It is mere child's play now to discuss Mr. Hayes' title to the Presidency. He is President, and so long as he acts justly and generously to the South he is entitled to the support of the Southern people. He has restored self-government to South Carolina, and he promises to make Louisiana a State instead of a province. When this has been done there is still a great work before him—namely, filling federal offices in the South with good and acceptable men. To do this he must in many cases select men who are not republicans. He must go outside of his party, and confer his appointments without regard to politics. It remains to be seen whether he will do this, or whether he will let the national government be disgraced, as it undoubtedly is in a great many instances, by the character of its officials."

Chicago Tribune:—"It is the misfortune of Senator Blaine in his present attitude of hostility to the administration to have his name connected by rumor with all sorts of extraordinary and absurd propositions having for their object the embarrassment and annoyance of President Hayes."

Washington Capital:—"The worst feature of all is that the poor sufferers are so utterly helpless. If Rutherford B. only wanted another electoral returning board swindle, were he but a candidate for a second term, they would hold him as they held other Presidents, most unpleasantly, to his dreary work in behalf of the party. But the man, somewhat amazed at being elected once, is not a candidate for a second term. With his Cabinet of democrats and doctrinaires, he treats their wrath with sublime contempt. When this Cabinet hung doubtful in the Senate a friend hurrying to him gave the startling information that the republican Senators would not confirm. 'Well,' said Rutherford B. with calm indifference, 'if the republicans do not the democrats will.' And now the democrats will sustain the man they fought so earnestly against, not that they love him more, but these republicans less. And they will confirm his appointments and pass his measures upon the same principle precisely that made Wendell Phillips advocate abolition—because the slaves were not his."

Charlotte (N. C.) Observer:—"It is a glorious thought that the South is once more free, and that all States are now considered equal under the constitution and laws of the land. What better can we say of Hayes than that he has kept his word and refused to be bulldozed out of his convictions by the threats and rantings of Northern fanatics and Southern carpet-baggers? A man who can resist the influence of party friends and do what he believes to be for the good of his country must undoubtedly have more nerve and backbone than falls to the lot of most men. This Mr. Hayes has done, and by so doing he has not only divested himself of blinded party prejudice, but has saved this country from turmoil and strife and has restored peace and quiet to an oppressed, impoverished and distracted people."

THE WAR AND ITS EFFECTS.

THE PROBABLE DEMAND FOR AMERICAN PRODUCTS—THE PRESENT PROSPECT.

[From the Baltimore American.]

WASHINGTON, April 23, 1877.

The certainty of European war and the prospect of an active demand in the English market for the breadstuffs of this country has caused much inquiry for statistics in regard to the supply and consumption of breadstuffs abroad, and the probable effect of the war upon the grain traffic. Dr. Edward Young, Chief of the Bureau of Statistics of the Treasury Department, has collected together some statistics bearing upon the subject, and it is upon information obtained from him that the following is based:—

THE CEREAL PRODUCT OF EUROPE.

According to a very careful and thorough statistical exhibit recently made by the French government, the total cereal production of Europe amounts at present to an average of 4,994,000,000 bushels per annum. Of this Russia alone furnishes 1,606,000,000 bushels, or nearly one-third of the whole; Germany, 742,500,000 bushels; France, 687,500,000 bushels, and Austria, 550,000,000 bushels. The production of this country is set down at 1,537,250,000 bushels, which very closely agrees with Dr. Young's own estimate. Thus this country, with a population of forty millions, produces 39½ bushels to each inhabitant, while Europe, with a population of 297,000,000, produces only about 16½ bushels per head.

The following table gives the amount of cereals per inhabitant produced by the various States of Europe:—

	Bushels.		Bushels.
Roumania	39.60	Ireland	12.65
Denmark	32.45	Turkey	12.65
Russia	22.27	Finland	12.10
Prussia	22.00	Great Britain	11.55
France	18.96	Saxony	10.40
Hungary	18.70	Servia	10.40
Bavaria	17.86	Holland	8.80
Sweden	15.11	Norway	8.51
German Duchies	14.00	Greece	8.51
Belgium	13.47	Italy	7.70
Spain	13.47	Portugal	7.70
Austria	12.91	Switzerland	6.76
Wurtemburg	12.91

According to the most moderate estimate the average quantity of cereals necessary for the consumption of each inhabitant is fourteen and nine-tenths bushels per annum, and it therefore results that all the States that come after Sweden upon the list have to obtain grain supplies from other countries. In this country three-fifths of the cereal production consists of maize. In Europe oats predominate, and next in quantity come wheat, rye, barley and maize. Russia, Prussia and France produce large wheat crops, and the two first are our largest competitors in the English market. In Roumania and Servia maize takes the first rank.

At one time the chief dependence of England for wheat was upon Russia and Prussia, and the supremacy of the United States in the grain markets of the world is of comparatively recent growth. Prior to 1860 Russia and Prussia led this country in the supply of wheat. From 1859 to 1861 the exports of wheat from this country to England sprang suddenly up from 430,504 cwts. to 15,610,472 cwts., while in the same period Russia advanced only from 3,837,454 cwts. to 4,567,483 cwts., and Prussia from 3,345,301 cwts. to 4,462,573 cwts.

The lead taken so suddenly by this country has ever since been maintained. Tables covering the years from 1860 to 1872 show that the United States supplied England during that period with 28.5 per cent of her total imports of wheat, including flour, against 24.7 per cent from Russia and 17.2 per cent from Germany. In the same period England imported forty-three per cent of her total importations of maize from this country. In 1852 the exports of maize of this country to Great Britain only amounted to 1,341,304 bushels, against 1,795,632 from Turkey and Roumania and 1,870,528 bushels from Russia. At present Roumania and Southern Russia, to a lesser degree, are our principal competitors in the supply of maize.

The year 1876 was a good harvest year in England, prices were low and the total imports of wheat were only 44,394,152 cwts., against 51,786,393 cwts. in 1875. The following table gives the sources of supply:—

	Cwts.	Per Cent of All.
United States and Canada	21,716,936	48.9
Russia	8,769,260	19.7
British India	3,279,887	7.4
Germany	2,324,148	5.2
Egypt	2,218,227	4.9
Turkey and Roumania	1,238,851	2.9
Chili	982,619	2.3
France	293,350	0.7
Denmark	262,518	0.6
Other countries	3,308,356	7.4
Total	44,394,152	100

The importations of maize were 39,958,226 hundredweight, of which upward of fifty per cent came from this country. Canadian exports of grain are included in those of this country, as they are produced in the United States. It will be seen that the countries that will be embraced by the war about to begin—Russia and Turkey—have furnished 22.6 per cent of the supplies to England. In India a dearth prevails this year. Egypt, being subject to the suzerainty of the Porte, will be affected by the war, and whether the war is localized or whether it draws into it other European Powers it is evident that the demand for American breadstuffs will be increased in the neighborhood of twenty-five per cent in case of the cutting off of the Russian and Turkish supplies from market by a prolonged war. Italy imports very largely from Odessa, on the Black Sea, and war will also create an active demand for our breadstuffs in Mediterranean ports.

EFFECTS OF PREVIOUS WARS.

From statistics furnished by Dr. Young it is possible to trace, in some measure, the effect of previous European wars upon the English market. At the time of the war between Turkey and Russia, in 1828 and 1829, England, as a rule, did not require very great foreign supplies, her own production being very nearly sufficient for her wants. But it so happened that the harvests were deficient in those years, and the price advanced from an average of 58s. 6d. per quarter in 1827 to 60s. 5d. per quarter in 1828, 66s. 3d. in 1829, when the Russian General, Diebitsch, made his victorious march into the heart of Turkey. The price did not come down until 1832, when the average price was again 58s. 8d. per quarter.

The war between Russia and Turkey, in which England and France eventually participated, began in the fall of 1853. England and France declared war March 27 and 28, 1854. Hostilities terminated February 29, 1856. The following table gives the imports of wheat for home consumption by England, and the average price during a term of years covering the war:—

	Quarters.	s.	d.
1852	4,135,376	40	9
1853	6,111,997	53	3
1854	4,370,852	72	5
1855	3,406,977	74	8¾
1856	5,614,260	69	2¼
1857	4,304,782	56	4¾

It will be noted that although in some of the years of high prices the home harvest was so good that the requirement of foreign breadstuffs was smaller than usual, yet the prices kept up. It should be stated, however, that in the four years from 1853 to 1856 the harvests in France were deficient, and instead of having wheat to export, as usual, it imported 6,946,156 quarters during that period, thus competing with England, instead of supplying it, as was usual.

The war between Prussia and Austria, in 1866, was so short that its effect upon trade and commerce was very transient. It began June 16 and lasted only seven weeks, but that period is nevertheless marked by an upward tendency in prices. The average price of wheat per quarter in the English market was 48s. 3d. in June, 54s. 1d. in July, 50s. 6d. in August and 48s. 11d. in September. Afterward, the new crop being scant, the price went up again, and the next year was one of high prices, ranging from 60s. to 69s. a quarter.

The period of hostilities between France and Germany is not marked by any signal increase of prices, low rates generally prevailing. War was declared July 19, 1870 and was terminated by a treaty of peace on February 26, 1871. The average price per quarter for wheat in the English market was 47s. 5d. in June, 1870; 50s. 10d in July and 53s. 10d. in August. In September, when the new crop entered the market, the price fell to 47s. 3d., from which it soon went up again, however, 1872 and 1873 being years of high prices, and did not fall so low again until September, 1874.

From September 1, 1876, to March 31, 1877, which covers the period since harvest, there has been placed in the English market, importations and home produce together, only 49,751,346 hundredweight of wheat, against 62,240,.31 in the same period of 1875-76, 58,004,067 in 1874-75 and 57,356,940 in 1873-74. During the same period from September 1, 1876, to March 31, 1877, the total imports of wheat into Great Britain have been only 21,.26,722 hundredweight, against 33,953,973 in the same period of the preceding season.

THE PRESENT PROSPECT.

In this country the visible supply of wheat is only about one-half what it was this time last year, and if the Russian supply is cut off from the English market by war the supply of wheat until the next harvest will be very scant and prices necessarily high. This will tend to make a good market for maize, of which there is in this country more than twice the quantity in store that there was this time last year, although the exportations to England have been larger than last year. While much depends upon the area of hostilities and the length of the war it is the opinion of statisticians that the Eastern war cannot fail to create an extraordinary demand for our breadstuffs.

THE COAL SALE.

The monthly coal sale of the Delaware Lackawanna and Western Company was held yesterday, when 75,000 tons were knocked down in about ten minutes, and to a very few buyers, at prices ranging generally from 5 to 10, and in some instances 12½ cents per ton higher than those realized at the March sale. The following is a comparison of prices:—

	March.	April.
Steamer	$2 70 a $2 82½	$2 92½ a $2 97½
Grate	2 70 a 2 77½	2 82½ a —
Egg	2 80 a 2 90	2 95 a —
Chestnut	2 80 a 2 82½	3 00 a —
Stove	3 20 a 3 27½	3 25 a 3 35

A number of coal dealers who attended the sale expressed themselves unhesitatingly of the opinion, however, that the sale was a "put up" arrangement; that there was no real advance in prices and that the stock speculation had more to do with the sale than the condition of affairs in the coal market. However this may be, Delaware, Lackawanna and Western stock closed at the highest figure of the week, running up about 1½ per cent shortly after the sale, though it is generally denied that the price of coal is any higher.

LIFE INSURANCE PERPLEXITIES.

THE NEW JERSEY MUTUAL INVESTIGATION—BENJAMIN NOYES AGAIN—COURT PROCEEDINGS AGAINST OTHER COMPANIES.

Evidently the Newark Grand Jury intend to reach the bottom of the New Jersey Mutual troubles, for they have this week reopened their inquiries with increased zeal. Among the last summoned witnesses are Daniel J. Noyes, Henry W. Smith, J. A. Brady and John J. Anderson. The investigation at present is said to be bearing chiefly upon the assets mentioned in Benjamin Noyes' receipt, which have not yet been accounted for. A strong effort is being made to ascertain what became of the $30,000 in cash. The statement has been made that $12,000 of the amount was drawn from the Chemical Bank by A. G. Fay on the day succeeding the transfer of the assets. One of the bookkeepers of the New Jersey Mutual, who accompanied Mr. Fay to the bank on that mission, has been called to testify before the Grand Jury. The after disposition of the money, and upon whose order it was disbursed, are the most important questions to be determined.

ANOTHER STATEMENT OF BENJAMIN NOYES.

Upon being asked what he had to say touching the evidence given on Monday by Daniel J. Noyes Benjamin Noyes handed to a HERALD reporter the following, which he had prepared touching this subject:—

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

It is almost impossible to keep track of the various courts and newspapers at present having to do with the New Jersey Mutual Life Insurance Company and myself. However, as heretofore, I will do the best I can consistent with not being in too much of a hurry. Your types yesterday make Mr. D. J. Noyes say, on the witness stand, among "other items United States bonds of the value of $87,000, and cash $30,000, which Mr. B. Noyes has not yet paid over to Receiver Parker." I do not believe Attorney Noyes, in fact, so said. If he did I am prepared, I believe, to show the numbers and class of United States bonds referred to as sold, by whom and on what day or days, as incontestable proof that no such or any other United States bonds ever were transferred to me or my company, or the avails of any part thereof; and as to cash, $30,000, that is equally false. Checks, like United States bonds, can be traced, and money paid out is capable of proof as to where it came from or the source from which it was derived.

Again, in the testimony of Mr. H. D. Walker you say, "The witness mentioned the building in New Haven; had a claim upon it by the Insurance Department of Connecticut for $100,000," and you add, "This conflicts in effect with the letter of B. Noyes to the HERALD April 22, in which he speaks of this granite building." The fact is that never a dollar was borrowed on this property (cost $450,000), and it has no debt whatever upon it, and neither the old nor the new company was ever indebted to the State of Connecticut, nor to the Insurance Department, nor any one else. But there was a difference of opinion among the directors as to the number of stories the building should have, and this was adjusted by the following arrangement, which was carried into effect by the Legislature:—This was to so amend the charter as to admit of the $100,000 deposited with the Treasurer of the State for the benefit of policy holders being used to complete the building six stories high, &c., and then, by regular deed of conveyance, transferred to the State of Connecticut as a public deposit for the benefit of the policy holders for the $100,000. the effect of which was and is to anchor the whole building property, costing $450,000, for the benefit of policy holders, instead of $100,000, as before. All this was done under a special act by the Legislature when in session in New Haven, and so highly was the arrangement approved that it received the unanimous vote of both houses.

There is thus one life insurance building, at least, anchored to its policy holders and can never be alienated, and no debt by mortgage can get upon it, come what will.

B. NOYES.

THE SECURITY LIFE AND ANNUITY.

An application was made to Judge Donohue, in Supreme Court, Chambers, yesterday, for an order directing and empowering the receiver of the Security Life Insurance and Indemnity Company, Mr. William H. Wickham, to bring an action against the directors of the company to recover from them, as a personal liability, the amount of all dividends declared and paid by them to bond and policy holders at least as far back as 1871. The application was made by Messrs. Barnes & Hanover in the interest of Charles K. Foote and several other policy holders in Mobile, Ala., and also numerous policy holders in several other States of the Union. The liability sought to be enforced, is that existing under the provisions of the Revised Statutes, for declaring and paying dividends and profits to both stockholders and policy holders of the company, in violation of the provisions of the charter of the company. It is claimed by Messrs. Barnes & Hanover and the policy holders whom they represent that the directors, having illegally distributed to the stockholders and policy holders over a million of dollars of the assets of this company, the Court should unquestionably direct and empower the receiver, either alone or jointly with representative stockholders and policy holders, to prosecute an action or actions, or file a supplemental bill or petition to enforce the personal liability of the directors. To justify and require such an action they say it is only necessary to show a reasonable probability or chance of success. It is not essential that the petitioners should demonstrate the certainty of their final success in the action, or the present pecuniary responsibility of the directors or any of them. The State and city of New York, it is claimed, are under special obligations to the other States and cities of the Union to pursue to the utmost limit all possible legal remedies to redress the infamous outrages and wrongs inflicted on thousands of families by the life insurance companies which have recently failed in the city of New York. Justice to our own citizens equally demands that the whole enginery of the law should be brought into action. The petition continues:—"If the courts in this State fail in this respect the confidence of the public in financial institutions located in the city of New York will not be restored in half a century, and trust in our business and mercantile honor will not and ought not to be given. Under the sanction of New York State charters these corporations have entered into the inner sanctuaries of thousands of households, not only in our own, but in every other State of the Union, and for a series of years have reaped therein their golden harvests. Shall our receivers and our courts now cap the climax of injustice by refusing to apply the legal remedies (alas! too few) that actually exist upon the statute book?" The amount which the applicants say may be realized from the proposed proceedings is estimated at several hundred thousand dollars; enough, they say, or almost enough, to make up the deficiency of the company. The receiver of the company was represented in opposition to the application, his reasons therefor being that the possibility of success was too remote to warrant the expense of the proposed proceedings. Judge Donohue took the papers, reserving his decision

THE POPULAR LIFE.

According to an order to show cause heretofore granted by Judge Donohue, argument was to have been heard before him yesterday in Supreme Court, Chambers, on the question of continuing the temporary injunction heretofore granted, restraining the officers of the Popular Life Insurance Company from exercising the franchises of the company until after a decision on the application of the Attorney General for authority to commence proceedings to wind up the company. Counsel were not prepared to proceed, however, and an adjournment was taken until Monday next.

NORTH AMERICAN LIFE.

On Friday last a motion was argued before Chief Justice Daly, in Common Pleas, Chambers, for leave to make the receiver of the North American Life Insurance Company a party defendant to the suit brought by Violetta A. Bedell to recover her share of the $400,000 paid by the Universal Life to the North American at the time of the amalgamation, and also her share of $500,000, which she says the company has made by lapses and surrenders of policies since the amalgamation. That motion is still under advisement. Since then, at Albany, before Justice Osborn, on motion of Messrs. Barnes & Hanover, her attorneys, Mrs. Bedell was allowed to intervene in the suit brought by the Attorney General against the North American, in which a receiver was appointed.

FIRE INSURANCE.

ELEVENTH ANNUAL SESSION OF THE NATIONAL BOARD OF UNDERWRITERS—EXTRACTS FROM THE REPORTS SUBMITTED.

The National Board of Underwriters commenced their annual meeting in this city yesterday, the session being held with closed doors. Mr. George L. Chase delivered the President's address. This was a long document, from which the following paragraphs are extracted:—

The capital employed for the year shows an increase from $55,383,020 to $56,623,440, upon which a dividend of 13.67 per cent was paid, a larger capital and a larger percentage of dividend than appears elsewhere in the figures. This increase of dividend all appears in the New York companies, which, with a smaller capital, have increased their dividend in amount, and of course, still more in percentage. The other State companies with an increased capital show a reduced per cent of dividend. The percentages are:—New York State companies, 14.53 per cent; companies of other States, 12.89 per cent.

The aggregate of premiums received for the year 1876 was $45,173,275 70, against $49,808,256 98 for the previous year, a decline in premiums of $4,634,981 28. The losses paid amounted to $23,118,183 20 for 1876, against $24,076,604 68 for 1875, a decline in losses of but $958,421 48. The loss ratio has thus increased from 48.33 to 51.17 per cent. This indicates either that the average rate of premium is decreasing or that losses are increasing. As a matter of fact, taken in connection with the other tables, it shows that the rate is decreasing and the losses increasing, because, while the rate has decreased less than three-tenths of one per cent, the loss ratio has increased nearly three per cent. We were writing at a lower premium and have lost by fire a larger proportion of our risks than during 1875. There is in this, perhaps, an indication of the drift. The percentage of losses paid to premiums received was, for—

	Per Cent.
New York State companies	49.17
Companies of other States	52.79
Foreign companies	47.13

In concluding his address Mr. Chase said:—

If I have accurately apprehended the situation, duty to the public and duty to ourselves as well demand that we should maintain the organization and the work of the Board with all, and more than all, the vigor of the past. Such, I trust, will be the conclusion to which your deliberations will tend during this annual meeting, and such the results which will follow it.

The Treasurer's report showed a balance on hand of over $14,000, and a balance in favor of the incendiary fund of $1,600.

The following members were appointed a committee on the recommendations of the President and provisional committees:—Messrs. A. A. Oakley and J. M. Hare, of New York; S. C. Preston, Hartford; F. W. Arnold, Providence; T. S. Chard, Chicago; and W. S. Davis, Philadelphia.

The following is taken from the annual report of the Committee on Statistics:—

The capital employed in the business in 1876 by American companies was $56,623,440, an increase of $1,240,420 over 1875; but while New York State companies showed a decline of $250,000 in their capital other State companies increased $1,490,420.

The percentage of losses paid in 1876 to premiums received was:—For New York State companies, 49 17-100 per cent; other State companies, 52 80-100 per cent; foreign companies, 47 67-100. The total amount of premiums received by American companies was $45,173,276, and by foreign companies $10,349,321, a total of $55,522,597.

Of the receipts of the year there was paid out for losses $28,051,402, or $539,221 less than in 1875. In addition to the above amounts, $4,170,603 was received by the companies for inland and marine premiums, and $2,996,839 paid out for losses, or an average of 71 85-100 of such receipts on this class of business. The total receipts were for premiums, including inland and marine, $59,693,200, and the total losses $31,048,241, or 52 1-100 per cent.

EXPENSES.

The percentage of expenses upon the whole receipts for premiums in 1876, including foreign companies, was 35 32-100 per cent against 31 52-100 per cent in 1875, an increase of 3 80-100 per cent. The whole amount paid for fire losses in 1876, as before stated, was $28,051,402; for inland and marine losses, $2,996,839; for expenses, $21,086,969, making a total of $52,135,210; or 87 34-100 of the receipts of the companies for 1876, and leaving an excess of $7,557,990, to which add interest on investments, $6,792,349, making $14,350,339.

Deducting dividends paid, $7,882,273, and profits of foreign companies, $2,165,888, leaves $4,302,172

From this deduct depreciation in assets of companies as compared with January 1, 1876, and we have a surplus of receipts over expenditures for the year of $983,192. The companies have paid since 1872 an average dividend of 12 20-100 per cent per annum to the stockholders, and have added to their assets only $2,753,316 during the four best years ever known to insurance companies, not a very encouraging exhibit.

PERCENTAGE OF ABILITY.

This table shows a decrease in the amount of risks assumed by the companies, compared with 1875, of $320,259,635. It also shows a decline to $222 50-100 of the ability to write on the part of the American companies, bringing the average largely below that of the last eleven years. There has also been a decline in the average rate of premium to 8,782-10,000, which is now below the average of 1870, a year in which the National Board was inoperative. As rates since the beginning of 1876 have still further declined, we bid fair soon to arrive at a point below that which was reached before the establishment of the Board in 1866.

The following gentlemen were appointed a committee on the nomination of officers:—Messrs. M. Bennett, Jr., Hartford; W. G. Crowell, Philadelphia; E. A. Walton, New York; E. W. Crowell, New York; W. S. Denny, Boston; J. H. Dewell, Providence; E. P. Cran, St. Louis.

The Board will continue its session to-day.

CÆSAR'S WIFE.

HOW HER "AUGUST" FORMER HUSBAND VALUES HER SOCIETY, AFFECTION AND COMFORT—SUING FOR ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS DAMAGES FOR THEIR LOSS.

The idlers who loiter about the corridors of the Court House like carrion birds flocked yesterday into the Oyer and Terminer chamber, where Judge Lawrence and a jury tried the suit of August Cæsar against Philip Kreger to recover $100,000 for the alleged alienation of his former wife's affections. Some months ago the plaintiff obtained a divorce from his wife on the ground of adultery, committed with the defendant and others, and he now sues to recover compensation for her loss, valuing her at the sum named. The parties are Germans, and all were in court yesterday, Mrs. Cæsar that was sitting directly opposite to the jury, so that they had (after hearing her testify in addition) a good opportunity to appraise her and decide intelligently upon her value in making up their verdict. Mrs. Cæsar had four children by her husband, three of them being now living with him, and the fourth dead. She has been living in the house of Kreger since the divorce as housekeeper.

THE TRIAL BEGUN.

Mr. W. F. Kintzing, who is associated with ex-United States District Attorney O'Neil as counsel for Mr. Cæsar, opened the case. The plaintiff, he said, was married to Mrs. Cæsar on the 14th of May, 1865, and they lived together thereafter. About the 1st of January, 1874, and at other times, Kreger debauched her, by means whereof her affection for her husband was wholly alienated and destroyed. On the 5th of August in that year she left her home, taking the youngest of her children with her. Six days later she returned, and was forgiven for her children's sake, but on the 22d again left home, and had since been living under Kreger's control. Mr. Kintzing claimed that only by suing for damages could a man in his client's position have the seducer punished, since the laws of this State, while they send to prison the wretch who steals a loaf of bread, do not retaliate upon the man who debauches a wife and destroys a family.

THE TESTIMONY.

The plaintiff was then placed upon the stand when he testified to the facts set forth in the complaint.

Mrs. Mary A. Herrich, a laundry woman, testified that in the fall of 1874 she lived with her mother-in-law, who kept a boarding house at No. 5 Winthrop place; that she there saw Mrs. Cæsar, who occupied a room on the second floor, and that Kreger called frequently; she further related many suspicious circumstances pointing strongly to illicit relations between them. The sister-in-law of this witness corroborated her testimony, and stated that the lady was known as "Miss Cæsar," and alleged that she never had been married. Sarah Halsart, daughter of the boarding mistress, also testified to having seen Kreger call on Mrs Cæsar at the same house. Mrs. Mary Britcher, of No. 506 Sixth avenue, testified that she formerly lived at No. 205 West Twenty-fourth street, in the house with Mrs. Cæsar; that Kreger visited the latter there, and was known as Mr. Cæsar. The daughter of this witness, a young girl, corroborated her mother's story, and said she had frequently seen Kreger come in the evening and go away from Mrs. Cæsar's room in the morning. Mrs. Wilhelmina Hauser, sister of the plaintiff, testified that she went to her brother's house in February, 1874, to see one of his children who was sick; that she went up stairs, and opening the door without knocking saw Mrs. Cæsar jump up from the lap of Kreger, who was seated in a rocking chair.

THE DEFENCE.

Mr. Charles Brooke, counsel for Kreger, opened for the defence. He claimed that the jury had nothing to do with the conduct of the parties after the woman left her husband's roof. The only question for them to decide was that embodied in the complaint—whether Kreger "contrived wilfully and knowingly to deprive this husband of the society, affection and comfort of his wife, and debauched and carnally knew her;" and whether defendant, as a result of that action, did thus injure the husband. Counsel claimed that the action was brought for the sole purpose of obtaining money from his client, who is a pork packer on First avenue and reputed wealthy.

CÆSAR'S WIFE DECLARES HER INNOCENCE.

Mrs. Cæsar testified that she left her husband only when she was obliged to leave him. She denied most emphatically that she had been induced to leave her home by Kreger; had been acquainted with the latter for nine months before she left her husband; after she returned to her husband he asked whether she got any money from Kreger, and upon her replying that she had not and that Kreger had always acted like a gentleman to her he told her to go to the devil; he also told her he wanted to bring a suit against Kreger to get some money out of him. Witness stated that she was acting as housekeeper now for Kreger. To Mr. Kintzing she admitted that the day she left home the last time she was taken to a hotel at Fort Lee by Kreger, who met her at the Forty-second street depot "by accident;" that he called upon her there and took her thence to his house, where she has since lived. She denied that anything improper had ever occurred between herself and Kreger at any time. Kreger then took the stand and swore that he had "never been anything out a friend" to Mrs. Cæsar, and denied having ever had any improper intercourse with her.

The case closed with this, and will be summed up this morning.

CUSTOM HOUSE INQUIRY.

The rumored appointment of ex-Minister John Jay as the third member of the Investigating Commission on the affairs of the customs service has been confirmed, and that gentleman has signified his acceptance. The commission now consists of Assistant Solicitor of the Treasury, Mr. Joseph Robinson; Mr. Lawrence Turnure, of the firm of Moses Taylor & Co., and Mr. John Jay, ex-Minister to Austria. These three gentlemen met yesterday at the Custom House and effected an organization by selecting Mr. Jay as chairman. The line of policy to be pursued by them has not been made public, but it is supposed that the investigation will be conducted quietly, the same as a similar body would adopt in looking into the affairs of a private corporation. The commission called at the office of General George H. Sharpe, Surveyor of the Port, and informed him that to-day they would call and commence business.

A SEIZURE OF CUTLERY.

Some of the officers of the revenue service seized yesterday on board of the steamer City of Berlin eight dozen English pocket knives, which were being smuggled ashore

OUR COMPLAINT BOOK.

SIDEWALK OBSTRUCTIONS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

I would call the attention of the authorities to the northwest corner of Thirty-third street and Eighth avenue, which is occupied as a secondhand furniture store, the owner of which stores his furniture on the sidewalk from "early morn to dewy eve," leaving but narrow passage between newly varnished furniture and old mattresses, with ragged carpets spread out under foot, to the undoubted satisfaction of the buyers, but to the great annoyance of passers by.

ANNOYED.

CROQUET IN THE PARK.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

There are numbers who have not the opportunity of leaving the city during the "heated term," and who long to enjoy, "as of old," a game of croquet in the Park, but cannot under the present arrangement, which is as follows—on not more than two days of the week we are compelled to use the ball ground. Now, the ball ground is entirely unfit for the game, the only shade being on the margin, and there the ground is very uneven and has a decline that makes it impossible to play croquet. If we cannot have our old ground, why should we not be given one in another location where we can have shade and a level ground? It is simple justice and our right. I hope, Mr. Editor, you will make room in your "Complaint Book" for this, and thereby oblige many SUFFERERS.

THE MORRISANIA POST OFFICE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

"H. D." in your "Complaint Book" of Monday says the people of Morrisania are satisfied to have the Post office Station where it is. It is plain "H. D." is too closely allied with the "Fifth Street Ring" to think otherwise. The question is one of public convenience, and every sane man and woman will admit 167th street is not a proper site to suit the wishes of the business community. One Hundred and Sixty-seventh street is in the upper end of the Twenty-third ward, opposite Morris' Woods, where snakes, toads and frogs are as plenty as blackberries. If Postmaster James is a gentleman with the love for the mirthful in his composition it must excite his comic vein to hear those rural, defunct politicians pleading to keep the Post office station near their favorite frog ponds. FAIR PLAY.

TOMPKINS STREET.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

The Street Department has at last found a dumping ground. They have taken complete possession of Tompkins street between Rivington and Stanton. They are dumping garbage and ashes in the street, blockading the street so that not more than one wagon can pass at a time. It is being piled up about fifteen feet high. The nuisance should be removed immediately, as it is very injurious to the health of the neighborhood and will produce malaria. It is a gross outrage upon those living and doing business in the vicinity. Please use your powerful influence in abating the nuisance. Yours, TOMPKINS STREET.

THE MILITIA PARADE GROUND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

I agree with "22" that the National Guard should be permitted to drill in Central Park. The Twenty-third, of Brooklyn, have a field day in Prospect Park every year, and the best society of Brooklyn attend. I see no reason why New York music should frighten park policemen and horses any more than that of our sister city. The fact that we have been without a parade ground is a disgrace to New York. I should like to hear what you have to say about the subject, and I know if you take it in hand "the job is done." 7.

SOMETHING NEEDING ATTENTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

Please inform the police that a lady cannot pass Tenth avenue, between Fifty-seventh and Fifty-eighth streets, without being insulted by a gang of loafers, who make use of indecent language to all that pass.

CARRIE M.

ENCOURAGE THE NATIONAL GUARD.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

The National Guard, S.N.Y., is deserving of much more attention than it receives. There is not another State in the Union where so little is done for the guard as in this. For many years inspections and regimental drills have been held in Tompkins square, which is in the most wretched neighborhood that could be selected for such a purpose. Let there be reforms. Give us the Central Park and it will improve the drills, assist recruiting and afford pleasure to the people. Will the HERALD use its mighty influence in aid of this cause? D. & B.

ANOTHER CHANCE FOR THE POSTMASTER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

Permit me to complain of the Post office department of this city. I posted a city letter at half-past seven A. M. at station E, which was not delivered until half-past one P. M. What excuse can be offered for the time occupied in transmitting a letter only ten blocks? Will Postmaster James please explain? B. F. L.

MUSIC IN THE PARK.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

I wish you would have the kindness to answer me a question. How is it that, enjoying such nice weather, New Yorkers do not try to have music in Central Park? I would be obliged to you if you would suggest something on this subject in your valuable paper.

FOREIGNER.

BANCO STEERERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

Will you kindly call the attention of the authorities to the class of vagabonds called banco steerers, who infest the vicinity of our principal hotels along Broadway and lure many unsuspecting country merchants to invest, and invariably lose, at their swindling game. It is a burning disgrace to the great city of New York that these men should be permitted to indulge unmolested in their nefarious practices. Please publish this and oblige MERCHANT.

PUT UP A FENCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

Cannot the owner of the stone yard, corner of Firs avenue and Forty-ninth street, be compelled to erec, a wooden fence to shut out a disgusting nuisance from neighboring eyes? It is impossible to sit at your windows opposite. E. ASSTRUCK.

CLEAR THEM AWAY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

Broadway, corner of Thirty-sixth street, west side is encumbered, both sides of the street, with old wagons (more particularly after six P. M.), carriages and heaps of stones. Cannot Mr. Douglass do something toward having these removed. Sundays especially the covered wagons are occupied by alot of boys, who hoot and shout and raise a noise in general. Three of the wagons belong to Mr. McShane, plumber, who should, I believe, keep his wagons on his premises, which are situated on the east side of Broadway, between Thirty-fifth and Thirty-sixth streets. The above facts have been brought to Mr. Douglass' attention quite often, but no notice is taken of it.

A RESIDENT OF THE STREET.

THE HARLEM TRAINS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

Knowing the power of your paper I ask its use in behalf of the residents of Harlem, who suffer much from the present schedule of running trains on the Harlem Railroad. If I miss the 8:40 P. M. train I am compelled to wait until 10:15, and if I go to the theatre or other place of amusement and miss the 10:15 train then I must kill time the best I may until 11:45. Why can't Mr. Vanderbilt give us a train at 10 P. M., 11 P. M. and 11:45 P. M.? To say it doesn't pay is all nonsense, for the cars are packed every time they leave the depot. Again on Sundays, going south we have the 10:09, and on that train we go to church; but after church we must wait until 2:30 P. M. to get back again. Harlem is treated by this railroad company as the small village it was eight or ten years ago, whereas it has grown twenty-fold in size since then. E. T. F.

ANSWER.

NOT A NUISANCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

Will you allow an old reader of your paper space to reply to the criticisms of "Thirty-fourth Street," upon what he is pleased to term a "dance house" in Thirty-second street, and in which he says he is compelled to listen to the most execrable music every evening, Sunday not excepted? Now, as your readers may draw a wrong inference from the designation which your correspondent applies to this house, I beg to inform them that it is a respectable dancing hall, similar to the Germania Assembly Rooms in the Bowery, in which German societies are in the habit of holding annual balls or entertainments, which, as a matter of course, are generally prolonged until the "wee small hours of the morning arrive." I, as a member of a society which annually gives some half a dozen concerts, can testify to the respectability of the performances given, and, while our finances will not allow us to indulge in the luxury of a Thomas or Gilmore orchestra, we always manage with the means at hand to have from ten to a dozen good instrumentalists, whom I have heard more than one competent critic commend for their exactness and precision in playing. I cite the above simply as an illustration. The other entertainments held there, I can assure your readers, from having attended many of them personally, are generally conducted in the same manner. I presume your correspondent is a musical dreamer, who, dreaming that he is hearing the classic strains of "Tommy Dodd" or "Shoo Fly," is disappointed to find on waking that it is only Wagner's "Tannhauser" or Rossini's "William Tell." If that is his malady I pity him and commend him to the indulgence of your readers. Yours respectfully,

PFAELZER.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

The Stock Market Active, Stronger, but Feverish.

GOLD 107 3-8 A 107.

Government Bonds Lower and Railroads Irregular.

Money on Call Easy at 2 a 3 Per Cent.

WALL STREET, WEDNESDAY, April 25—6 P. M.

On the Stock Exchange to-day business was large, excited and feverish. A rise for two continuous days was such a rare sensation that the market seemed scared at its own success. The very decided improvement was almost too good to be true, and by many bulls was only realized under the act of selling out. This at one time created a temporary recession of prices, but as the session grew to its close figures stiffened up again, and at the end, in most instances, the best quotations of the day were made. The chief point to be ascertained just now is, What amount of faith can be placed in the permanency of the rise? Is it merely a matter of fiz and ultimate failure, or a sound improvement based upon the commercial benefits likely to spring from a European war and the unnaturally depressed condition of many stocks? Is it better to hold on, or is there doubt enough to suggest the acceptance of Hoyle's advice "to take the trick," by selling out and bagging the profits? The "Divine William" tells us that

Our doubts are traitors,
And make us lose the good we oft might win.

So it would appear that even the bard might have had some knowledge of stock jobbing and had realized the propriety of taking a profit when offered. Although it is pretty evident that some of the leading operators, knowing the market to be considerably oversold, anticipating the effects of a foreign war and realizing that the prices of many stocks were unduly depressed, have been active buyers, with the intent of parting with their shares at higher figures—in short, for the simple purpose of making a profitable turn upon the market—we have, nevertheless, good reason to believe that within the last two days quite an important amount of stocks have been bought, paid for in full and taken out of the street. How long they will be kept out of the street is another matter, but the mere inception of such a movement is a subject of congratulation, since it forms the only sure and reliable basis for a permanent improvement. The properties chiefly benefited by this action have been Morris and Essex, the coal carriers and Rock Island. The latter was in full fig to-day, rising from 86 to 89, and closing only a shade off of the latter price. The confessed failure of the $8,000,000 loan, for some inscrutable reason, seems to have affected the stock favorably. It is officially announced that the loan (of which $2,000,000 only have been subscribed for) has been withdrawn for the present, but may again be offered on the 1st of July and 1st of October next, giving a chance to bondholders to exchange the present outstanding issue for the new bonds up to the 1st of January following. Some additional strength was also lent the market by a report that Messrs. H. Kennedy & Co. had made a settlement with their creditors. This was afterward denied, but the impression is that matters are tending satisfactorily toward that desirable issue. The market, which had been playing fast and loose with both bulls and bears for the greater part of the morning, took a strong turn upward toward three o'clock, driving many of the smaller shorts to cover and closing up business at about the highest points of the day.

THE MONEY MARKET.

Money on call was very easy all day at 2 a 3 per cent closing at 2 a 2½ per cent. The following were the rates of exchange on New York at the undermentioned cities to-day:—Savannah, buying ⅛, selling ¼; Charleston; scarce, nothing doing; St. Louis, 1-10 premium; Cincinnati, steady and firm, buying par, selling 1-10; Chicago, 50 to 75 premium, and New Orleans, commercial, 5-16, bank ⅜. Foreign exchange was firm at 4.87 a 4.87½ for bankers' long, and at 4.89 a 4.89½ for demand sterling.

THE GOLD MARKET.

Gold advanced at the opening from 107⅜ to 107⅛, but afterward declined to 107, which was the closing figure. The carrying rates were 2½, 2, 3 and 1 per cent. Loans were also made flat. The warlike speech of Count Von Moltke in the German Parliament yesterday, which caused a sharp drop in consols and French rentes to-day, failed to have any strengthening effect on gold, but, on the contrary, the price declined. The Germans and others sold gold on the theory that the speech was only made to secure the appropriation asked for by the War Department.

Erie was a shade higher for the common, selling at 6⅛. At Paris rentes declined to 102.85 against 103.37½ yesterday. The sum of £40,000 was withdrawn from the Bank of England on balance to-day. The closing prices in London show a shade further decline, and were as follows:—Consols for money, 94 1-16 a 94⅛; do. for account, 94⅛; five-twenty bonds of 1860, old, 102⅛; do., 1867, 107⅛; ten-forty bonds, 107⅞; new fives, 105⅜; Erie common shares, 6⅛; Erie preferred shares, 16; New York Central, 84⅛; Illinois Central, 47.

A letter has been published signed by several prominent firms and shareholders, who represent over three millions and a half of the stock of the Ohio and Mississippi Railway Company, calling upon the stockholders to have a committee appointed to investigate the affairs of the company. If the shareholders in all the other railroad companies were to insist upon a similar investigation they would benefit their property, if it is really valuable, and would point out to the public at large which are the properties that are valuable.

NEW YORK, APRIL 25, 1877.
To the Stockholders of the Ohio and Mississippi Railway Company:—
The undersigned stockholders of the Ohio and Mississippi Railway Company, after informal consultations among themselves and with many other stockholders, have deemed it advisable to recommend to the stockholders of the company the appointment of a committee to obtain full information as to the liabilities and resources of the company, with a view to devising and adopting a plan to relieve it from its existing embarrassments, to confer with the receiver, and to take such other action for the protection of the interests of the stockholders as such committee may deem expedient. The stockholders have no information, and at present no means of information, as to the condition of their property. Their interests are wholly unrepresented and unprotected. The necessity for organization is most urgent and vital; and, if the proper action is taken, the undersigned believe that the company can be restored to solvency, and that the stock will recover much of its lost value. The undersigned, therefore, request you, if you approve of the action proposed, to send without delay to Messrs. Day & Heaton, 29 New st., New York, authority to the undersigned to act for you in the selection and appointment of the committee, stating the number of shares owned or represented by you. Owners of over three and a half millions of stock have already assented.

NEW YORK, THURSDAY, APRIL 26, 1877.

NOTICE TO COUNTRY DEALERS.

The Adams Express Company run a special newspaper train over the Pennsylvania Railroad and its connections, leaving Jersey City at a quarter past four A. M. daily and Sunday, carrying the regular edition of the HERALD as far West as Harrisburg and South to Washington, reaching Philadelphia at a quarter-past six A. M. and Washington at one P. M.

From our reports this morning the probabilities are that the weather in New York to-day will be cool and clear or partly cloudy.

WALL STREET YESTERDAY.—The stronger tone which was apparent in the stock market on Tuesday was still more so yesterday. There was an advance all along the line, and, in spite of the decline in gold, the stock market seemed to respond to the news from Europe, which is generally supposed to be advantageous to the business prospects here. Gold declined from 107$\frac{3}{8}$ to 107. Government bonds were also weaker and railroad bonds irregular. Money on call loaned at 2 a 3 per cent and closed easy at 2 a 2$\frac{1}{2}$ per cent.

COAL ADVANCED slightly yesterday, but it was not a day in which to shiver about it.

MORE COMMENTS, and from prominent men, on the statns of parties and the chances of the formation of a new one, will be found in another column.

"A FINE BATCH of life insurance perplexities" appears this morning and adds to the perplexity of would-be policy-holders who are asking themselves, "Where shall we insure?"

IF THE FLAW IN THE EXCISE LAW will really facilitate the closing of the vile dens in Water street the stupidity of the framers of the law will seem to have existed by the special design of Providence.

NOW THAT THE LOUISIANA CASE IS SETTLED and all other States are politically tranquil, the lovers of quarrels over election returns cannot do better than follow the strife for the office of Surrogate of Kings County.

THE UNITED STATES CONTINUES TO LEARN to take care of itself and keep its money at home. Imports from the United Kingdom during the past three months were far less than those of the corresponding months of last year.

MEXICO PROPOSES to do her share in the work of startling the nations. She has just imprisoned an ex-Secretary of the Treasury for alleged misappropriations. If such acts are cause for arrest Mexico needs a thousand or two more jails at once and a detachment of patriots from somewhere else to guard the prisoners.

THE LEGISLATURE DID LITTLE of public interest yesterday. In the evening the Assembly passed a bill creating a City Court of New York and abolishing the Marine Court. The Senate ordered to a third reading the bill in reference to abatement of nuisances, its object being to get rid of the foul smells which annoy East River tourists between Harlem and Corlear's Hook.

THE COMING DOG SHOW promises to be a brilliant affair, but we regret to learn that there will be no special prize for the largest collection of dead Spitz dogs. Such a prize would not only give new impetus to a needed precaution, but would justify the agile and muscular policeman in putting his club where it would do the most good.

THE FATALITY recently attending bites by a cat indicates a source of danger which is too likely to be overlooked. Considering that there are two great rivers within easy reach of any portion of the city, that the largest cat is not a heavy burden, that brickbats may be had for the asking, and that string with which to attach them to feline necks is inexpensive, it would seem as if the chances of cat bites might be materially lessened within twenty-four hours.

THE FAREWELL ADDRESS OF EX-MARSHAL PACKARD to his friends is characterized by all the virtues and verbosity peculiar to political "outs." He alludes to his own title of Governor as unassailed and unassailable; leaves the reader to infer that Louisiana's only friends were in the Packard clique; is sure that had he been confirmed his government could have existed without assistance from the military; compliments his friends on their fidelity to principle, and advises them to battle for free government and the rights of citizenship. He has not lost his wits, however, nor forgotten what is the general object of a political career in the South; he advises such of his policemen as have received offers from the Nicholls government to accept them.

THE WEATHER.—The barometer has fallen decidedly over the British Atlantic provinces, and what has been a slight has become a decided depression. This change of pressure not unfrequently occurs on the northeastern coast, especially where the low area is one of high temperature and the atmosphere of a reduced degree of humidity. Another depression has commenced to move over Texas into the Lower Mississippi Valley, and is attended by rains on the Gulf coast. Rains and snow have fallen in the West, where the temperature is very variable. The pressure is low on the Pacific coast. Altogether the probability of a change of weather during the next few days is very great. In New York to-day the weather will be cool and clear or partly cloudy.

The War Blaze in Europe—Von Moltke's Speech.

The HERALD's special cable letters from Paris and London afford a vivid and striking picture of the excitement with which all Europe is ablaze now that war between Russia and Turkey is an accomplished fact. Although the result has been for some time foreshadowed, and many must have foreseen that hostilities were almost inevitable; yet, now that the clang of arms is actually heard and the hostile banners are unfurled at the head of advancing columns, the blow seems to have fallen suddenly, and the nations stand aghast at the contemplation of the momentous consequences that may be hidden in the future. In the light of the decisive action of Russia, the remarkable declarations of Von Moltke, the attitude of the King of Italy toward the Ultramontanes, the activity in the British Navy and the Eastern troubles all assume an exaggerated importance, and every mind is shaken by the spectre of a general European war. Paris, just recovering from the shock of arms, is probably more intensely excited than any other capital, and, perhaps, with the greatest cause. Her boulevards, last evening and long past midnight, reminded one of the scenes that transpired when events occurred in which she had a yet deeper and more personal interest. Her journals all eagerly discuss the situation, but with varied views. Girardin, in La France, adopts a bold and decisive pro-Russian tone, and avows that his sympathies and ardent wishes are with that nation in its battle against the detestable government of Constantinople. The Débats, République Française, Temps and other papers are less enthusiastic, and in some instances rather opposed to Russia than otherwise. On the Bourse the feeling of universal distrust is shown in the feverish and falling securities. London is less demonstrative than Paris; but while her streets are not filled with excited throngs, as are the Paris boulevards, the voice of her press indicates the uneasiness of her people. The Times, which has been an advocate of the Russian side of the controversy, now declares that the Czar has committed a grave error in neglecting to proclaim that in no event will Russia seize any Turkish territory. The Times, which has almost justified Russia in going to war, in fact desires that she should fight only as England desires her to fight, and without disturbing those ancient "balances" so precious to the English but so objectionable to the Russians. A conquering autocrat in the field at the head of a powerful army flushed with victory is not, however, very likely to be turned aside from the path of conquest either by the cooing of a dove or the roar of a lion. Nor will the extravagant and almost abusive tone of a portion of the English press dispose the Czar to look with much favor on the pleadings of his former advocate, the London Times.

So far as the immediate personal interests of France are concerned in the present disruption and excitement we believe that we rightly interpreted General Von Moltke's remarkable speech in the German Parliament in regarding it as destitute of the international significance that it might be natural to attribute to such words spoken in such a place. It was intended for "home use" and was effective. Otherwise it was a blunder. It could but startle Europe and justly provoke the susceptibilities of France. If the German Ambassador at Paris has not made explanations we do not doubt that he will, for in the absence of explanations there must necessarily follow great activity in all the French arsenals. Names of great authority give importance to statements that would not attract attention in the mouths of commonplace people, because it is supposed that the bearers of such names use their words with a due sense of the added weight the name may give, and further because it is to be supposed that the experience and high station which give the name authority are not unaccompanied by perceptions and judgment superior to those of ordinary men. But it should be remembered that outside the range of his own activities a distinguished man's opinions are of the same value as another man's. General Sherman's expression of opinion on any point relative to the art or practice of war would justly have great weight with thoughtful persons; but it would not be accurate to assume that because this distinguished soldier has been successful in war his opinions are of supreme consequence upon any one of a dozen subjects that have no relation whatever to military art or science.

In the United States it is common for every man to have acquaintance with a dozen activities, and to believe that he thoroughly knows them all. If, therefore, the above principle is good here, it is still better in Europe, where one man is satisfied to know thoroughly one subject, and where the discipline and practical law of life is to confine him to that subject. It seems to us that this is to be kept in sight in considering what weight is to be attached to the declaration made by General Moltke on Tuesday in the German Parliament. General Moltke is a great soldier, we know. If he is also a great politician it is odd the world did not find it out before; while, if he is a great diplomatist in addition, he is a far more exceptional person than was thought, because it happens very rarely that a man possessing the kind of mind that makes a great soldier is able to comprehend the methods of politics, much less to become great in their application. For the great German soldier therefore to make a declaration in the sphere of the diplomatists and politicians; to give where the basis of opinion is at least uncertain an expression as positive as if those opinions were visible facts—all this is to put himself beyond the field in which his words derive importance from the consideration of his talents and achievements.

It is at least certain that every Cabinet in Europe must do its utmost to avert the wars that Moltke's words contemplated as to come. There is not a government in Europe but that in lending itself to any course which might generalize the war would venture the loss of more than any one Power can hope to gain, and to this Russia is no exception. With a war simply between Russia and Turkey, and waged for the purposes the Czar declares, it is probable that Russia will be able to redeem from Ottoman rule the whole of Bulgaria to the southern slope of the Balkan range, and to set up there a Power related to her own rule, as Roumania, Servia and Montenegro are. It is not indeed impossible that Russia may reduce the Mussulman territory in Europe to the mere Vilayet of Adrianople. If peace is made with the Russians in Adrianople that restriction of Ottoman rule will be its first condition. Russia can go to this point without awakening the fears of England for Constantinople; and it is not possible for England to stir except in pursuance of her known policy with regard to that city. Russia's limit is the point beyond which England must necessarily act. She must, therefore, leave to the Turk that southeastern corner of his present European dominions. But in what may be done short of that she simply paves the way for her advance to the Bosphorus when the next occasion comes. Observe how her troops now cross the Pruth and promenade through Roumania. In the next war they will go in the same way through all the country north of Adrianople. Neither is there likely to be objection to this Russian programme on the part of Austria; for she has the same interest that Russia has in the settlement indicated of the territories opposite her own on the Danube. Some of these would gravitate to her as naturally as others to Russia, and she would have a moderate guarantee of a tranquil frontier. The Power that dared not raise a finger against Prussia in support of France for fear of Russia will as little dare to raise a finger against Russia in support of Turkey for fear of Prussia. Neither of the Powers, therefore, that might have an interest with Turkey against Russia can have any such interest until Russia has gone beyond the purpose declared in the Emperor's proclamation. Before their interest arises, therefore, Russia will have proffered a fair peace to a beaten foe. From what quarter, then, could the movement arise that in Von Moltke's view is to put all the nations in collision?

It might naturally be thought that a declaration thus made indicated German intentions. Nobody doubts, we suppose, that there is an understanding between the two Northern governments, but that this understanding has such scope as to ally the Powers for a present reconstruction of the map of Europe we do not believe. If the Cabinet of Berlin had such a purpose it would not have kept it secret until now in order to let it out by the mouth of Von Moltke in the German Parliament; if it had such an intention Bismarck would not have retired to private life this year, and the war that has now succeeded to two years of palaver would have broken out at least a year ago, with abrupt indifference to diplomatic ceremonies.

The Tweed Revelations.

The unevasive testimony of Mr. John Kelly places Attorney General Fairchild before the public in an unenviable light. We do not know how Mr. Fairchild can reconcile with any accepted standard of honor the statements he made to the agents of several newspapers on the day the World published the alleged substance of Tweed's confession. The whole press and the whole public desired to know whether that information was authentic, and Mr. Fairchild showed that he was willing to mislead them. He might have closed his doors against all interviewers, or have made a point blank refusal to open his lips on the subject, and left the journals to draw their own inferences. This he could have done without even a seeming breach of truth and without personal dishonor. But instead of this he made remarks which were calculated and intended to throw discredit on the World's account of the confession. The Attorney General's prevarications were as unjust to that journal as they were uncandid to the public. He knew that the abstract contained in the World was substantially correct, because he was the original source of the information. Without any injunction of secrecy he had imparted it to Mr. Kelly, who, in turn, imparted it to the editors of the World, with permission to make it public. We wait to see what Mr. Fairchild has to say in explanation of his extraordinary conduct. Why did he affect to deny what he knew to be the truth? We hope he will now make what atonement is in his power by giving the document to the press and permitting the community to see precisely what Tweed has said and whom he accuses. But it must be published without suppressions or garbling—a demand which we should not have thought of making if the officer who holds the confession had not shown himself capable of trifling with and attempting to practice upon the public.

When such a document is known to be in existence and a part of its contents have been disclosed to the great injury of individual reputations the Attorney General has no moral right to withhold the remainder. Every day that he keeps it back will strengthen the growing suspicions of an intention to make it an instrument of revenge upon some, extortion upon others, and a means of accomplishing sinister political purposes by operating upon the fears of men who do not know whether their names are included in the confession or not. There is no justification for keeping this document back another day. All right-minded men call emphatically for its immediate publication.

Foreign War and American Business.

Whatever may be the political result of the European war it is certain that its effects will be beneficial to business in America. A marked and general advance has already occurred in everything that is likely to be demanded by the opposing armies. Flour, wheat, corn, rye, pork and beef, all of which are absolute necessities to large armies, advanced noticeably yesterday in the principal commercial centres, and even such less prominent military stores as coffee, sugar and whiskey participated in the general rise. Ocean freight rates, though it is not yet time to look for increased shipping contracts and charters, were firm. A favorable sign for American business interests is the comparatively small advance in the price of gold; European owners of our bonds seem to have concluded, with sound reason, to retain the only class of national securities which cannot be unfavorably affected by Continental complications; so there is little or no danger that any change in the nominal value of our currency will occur to disturb values. That a foreign demand will not be experienced is impossible; a careful exhibit which we republish from an exchange shows how unable Europe will be in case of war to supply her home demand for provisions.

The benefits of this increase of trade in America will be of general application. Even were the activity to be confined to producers and shippers of breadstuffs, provisions and forage, the demand for labor and the increased receipts for products would improve the prospects of several large industries. The truth is, however, that these branches of trade are themselves dependent upon many others, and a large proportion of the moneys received in them will find its way into many business channels. All Americans have a genius for spending money, and any unusual fortune that befalls the farmer and shipper becomes speedily distributed everywhere else. An immense influx of money is inevitable, and such portions of it as do not go to the manufacturerers of implements specially needed by the agriculturist will be applied to the satisfying of the many real and fancied needs of those who receive it, and thus have a stimulating effect upon every department of business. The country will be equal to every demand made upon it from abroad; may it remember past experiences and at every stage of its financial improvement distinguish carefully between business and speculation.

Secretary Sherman's Opportunity.

The great war which has begun in Europe will have a powerful and stimulating effect on American business and finance, offering occasions for the enterprise of our merchants, the energy of our fiscal administration and the sagacity of both. Such of our merchants as are at once sagacious and bold will make fortunes, but such of them as halt or miscalculate will lose the advantages of the new situation and the quick-rushing tide of events. A similar remark may be applied to the chief director of our national finances. Within the ensuing two years Secretary Sherman will either make his reputation or mar it forever. There lies before him an opportunity such as has not been presented to any of his predecessors for establishing a great name as a master of fiscal operations. What he needs to avail himself of it is quickness of financial perception, sureness of judgment, correct foresight of the immediate future, and, above all, such complete confidence in his conclusions as will preclude vacillation in seizing events by the forelock. A Finance Minister, in a great conjuncture like this, should possess qualifications precisely identical in kind with those which will make the fortunes of great merchants, but superior in degree. A sagacious merchant knows when to buy largely, boldly and without hesitation, knows how long to hold and when to sell; but if he makes an error of judgment and mistimes any of these operations, or if, judging correctly, he fails in decision of purpose, opportunities come and go in vain for him. All this holds true in a larger sense for the Secretary of the Treasury. If he should prove to have no foresight of events, no appreciation of opportunities, or if, seeing things clearly, he does not act with energy and decision at the proper moment, the country will suffer beyond calculation. The momentous period on which we are entering is not a time for routine or red tape or hide-bound ideas, but for alertness of intellect and the boldest order of financial courage.

There are two capital objects which Secretary Sherman must keep steadily in view, and it will require all his astuteness and vigor to take advantage of the winds and currents to carry his ship toward these points of destination. No skill is needed to select the ports, but only to conduct the voyage. The two capital objects at which Secretary Sherman should aim are, first, the early resumption of specie payments, and second, the early refunding of the public debt. These should have been the two great objects of his policy even if this European war had not broken out; they must still remain his chief objects during its continuance. But the war, if he is skilful enough to turn it to account, befriends him like favoring winds that spring up to aid a becalmed vessel. We cannot go over the whole ground now, and will merely throw out one or two hints respecting specie payments. It has been maintained by some of Secretary Sherman's predecessors that we cannot safely venture on specie payments until the state of our foreign trade is such as to insure us against a drain of gold during the first year or two of the experiment. They maintain that our exports must not only exceed our imports, but that the balance must be great enough to discharge our heavy annual interest account abroad as well as pay for our importations of foreign goods. Otherwise we might be compelled to suspend again by a drain of gold to Europe before the business of the country had adjusted itself to the specie basis. Now, by a magnificent stroke of good fortune, we are put in this desirable situation without any agency or sagacity of our own. The European war touches all the nerves of our various industries; it enlarges our markets, quickens and increases our exports, enhances the prices of every salable and exportable commodity and insures a great balance of trade in our favor during the continuance of the war. There is no danger of a drain of gold, because we shall bring Europe constantly in our debt for commodities. A time will never come in this generation when we may so boldly venture on the great experiment of specie payments with absolute security against the chief source of danger and miscarriage. Our gold cannot be taken from us. The balance of trade in our favor will give us a constant source of supply. Let Secretary Sherman procure from Congress at the approaching extra session permission to fund fifty millions of greenbacks in long bonds, and the Treasury may safely resume specie payments at once. If there should be any lack of currency the banks will supply it. The effect of immediate resumption on prices would be imperceptible, because the enhancement of prices by the foreign demand will overbalance the depression which would otherwise be caused by a slight contraction of the currency. Does Secretary Sherman realize the value of this great opportunity?

Packard's Retirement.

Mr. Packard yesterday issued his promised address to the "Republicans of Louisiana" and formally announced his determination to withdraw "for the present from all active assertion" of his government. In taking this inevitable step Mr. Packard briefly summarizes the "historical events" that have occurred since the election of November last, but in his work he only proves how impossible it is for a writer to be at once an impartial historian and an actor in the events recorded. According to this authority the republican government was legally and peacefully inaugurated in the State; the Legislature, with a legal quorum, was in session, and the canvass for Governor legally completed when "the White League rose in armed insurrection" and by a coup de main took possession of the courts, the police stations and other public offices located at the Capitol. A constitutional call was made on President Grant for aid, to which he not only failed to respond, but, by establishing a status quo, in fact confirmed the insurgents in the advantages they had gained. Still the legal Legislature remained unshaken until President Hayes, succeeding President Grant, sent a commission to New Orleans, which demoralized that body, carried its members over to the Nicholls House, and then exchanged "congratulatory messages" with the President on the happy conclusion of their labors.

We need scarcely say that the impartial historian, coming in after years when the passions of the Louisiana contest have passed away and are forgotten, may possibly make a very different record of these events. However, Mr. Packard may reasonably be pardoned for some display of annoyance and disappointment at the defeat of his attempt to rule the State. The facts that he waives none of his legal rights, that he yields only to superior force, and that he continues to sign himself "Governor," will not probably disturb any one in or out of Louisiana. He still insists that his "legal government" would have sustained itself "without the intervention of United States troops;" but in this his summary of "historical events" is scarcely consistent. If his government had the power to sustain itself why did it not do so at the time of the armed insurrection of the White League instead of calling for aid from the United States? However, as Packard has abandoned his hopeless struggle, no one will be displeased to hear that he is not discouraged or be disposed to censure him too unkindly for wishing to have his scold out.

Backofen, the Swiss jurist, says that the regulation of marriage by which in primitive times it became possible for a woman to belong to only one man, came about by a religious reformation wherein the women, in armed conflict, obtained a victory over men.

Portland's new anti-Blaine newspaper enterprise doesn't come on very swimmingly, and but $15,000 of the needed $50,000 has been subscribed, of which $10,000 is by ex-Collector Washburn and $5,000 by Congressman Burleigh. Mr. Washburn still says the paper will appear about July 1.

The death of Sir John Foster Fitzgerald reduces the list of British field marshals to three—the Duke of Cambridge, the Marquis of Tweeddale and the Prince of Wales. Rumor says that it will not be increased until the Duke of Connaught, the future Commander-in-Chief, has a few more years of military experience.

A curious story comes to us from Paris of an eccentric gentleman who acquired some celebrity for the manner in which he managed to get rid of his creditors. On the dun presenting himself he was ushered into a room hung round with a variety of mirrors—concave, convex, &c. In one the unhappy creditor beheld himself with a head as flat as a flounder; in another his face was long drawn, thin, and sharp as the blade of a knife; in a third he had nearly as many heads as a Cerberus, and in a fourth he was upside down. In one he was grinning like a clown; in another blubbering like a whipped schoolboy, and in still another with a visage long drawn and melancholy as an undertaker's on strike. On one side of the room he was all head and no body; on the other all body and no head, and on a third he looked like Tom Thumb stuck into the boots of Jack the Giant Killer. Few duns, however pressing, could endure the torture for more than a quarter of an hour.

SWEEPING UPON TURKEY

Von Moltke's Speech That Has Fired All Europe.

ENGLAND STILL PASSIVE

Paris Wild with Excitement—Funds Falling Every Moment.

[BY CABLE TO THE HERALD.]

PARIS, April 26, 1877.

The present hour is one of great events for European civilization. Its future trembles upon the verge of a most momentous crisis. Paris is as excited as when the Empire fell. The boulevards were last night thronged with multitudes of excited people, who, taking advantage of the mild weather and the beaming moon were anxious to discuss the events which have befallen Europe. From all sides the universal cry of war resounds! From Russia on Monday came the declaration of war and yesterday followed an official notification of the occupation of Roumania by the Czar's legions. Again, for the fourth time in this century, the legions of the Cross are arrayed against those of the Crescent. From the Caucasus we hear of Russian armies invading Asia Minor. On all sides the Czar pushes firmly forward. The rumors from Berlin regarding the astounding declarations of Von Moltke, "that Germany must prepare to meet reawakened France," have aroused Paris to a sense of imminent danger. From Italy comes word that Victor Emmanuel will propose to meet the ultramontanes in deeds, but in words no longer. And now she strengthens her armies and England her navies.

FUNDS ARE FALLING.

At the Bourse the funds are falling every hour. In this respect what is true of Paris is equally true of every money centre in Europe. Each new event promises a new sensation in the stock market. Turkey is surrounded with a wall of fire. Herzegovina, Albania and Dalmatia are in arms. Epirus, Thessaly and Crete, all provinces of the Turk, are preparing to fight for freedom under the banner of Leonidas. Now, ye gods, for a Marco Bozzaris!

GIRARDIN'S WORDS.

The Czar's declaration came like a thunderbolt upon Europe, and unmistakably showed that he only intended to speak when he was ready to strike. The French journals express varied opinions regarding the crisis. Girardin, in La France, speaks as follows:—

Russia is about to fight the detestable government having its seat at Constantinople. All my sympathies, all my ardent wishes are on this solemn occasion with the Russian nation.

The Invalide Russe says that the Porte is without money, statesmen or allies.

OUR LONDON DESPATCHES.

[BY CABLE TO THE HERALD.]

LONDON, April 26, 1877.

According to the latest despatches from Bucharest 15,000 Russians yesterday occupied the railway bridge at Barboschi. Up to yesterday evening 50,000 Russians had entered Roumanian territory. The Turks up to that time remained perfectly passive on the banks of the Danube. The Roumanian army has retired from the Danube into the interior, where it is divided into two bodies, one at Bucharest and the other at Krajova. The inhabitants on both banks of the Danube are fleeing en masse into the interior of Roumania. As soon as the Russians arrived at Barboschi the Roumanian troops retired. Two British gunboats have entered the Danube. One is anchored off Galatz. So far not a shot has been fired. The Turks are leaving Widdin in great haste in the direction of the Dobrudscha, where they appear to expect the principal Russian attack. The Turks have not yet made any movement to occupy Kalafat, Giurgevo, Altenitza or Marguela on the left bank of the Danube. The Russians continue to enter Roumania by way of Bulgrad, Leova and Jassy. The Russian headquarters will be transferred to Jassy in a few days.

A BATTLE IMMINENT.

Vienna correspondents say a fight is imminent near Barboschi for the railway bridge over the River Sereth. The Turks unaccountably missed the opportunity of forestalling the Russians in seizing the bridge, and the Russians are now prepared to defend it. Three Turkish gunboats have entered the river to destroy the bridge. The Russians will continue to cross the Pruth by four pontoon bridges for the next few days. The opinion in military circles in Vienna is that Austria will occupy Bosnia in the second week of May with two divisions of her army.

THE ARMED OCCUPATION.

A Vienna despatch reports that the contracts made by the Russians in Roumania do not indicate any intention on the part of Russia to send the whole army immediately to the Danube, but show that it is possible an opportunity for negotiations between Russia's first overt act in crossing the Pruth and her final attempt to force the passage of the Danube will be given the Turks. No hope is entertained in Constantinople that mediation of the Powers would be successful at the present stage. The Political Correspondence's (of Vienna) special from Constantinople states that the Porte's request for the mediation of the Powers has been completely unsuccessful.

A Bucharest correspondent says a telegram from the Austrian Consul announces that 12,000 Russians have occupied Galatz and Braila, securing an important railway bridge. The Turks are throwing up vast earthworks at Rustchuk. There are two lines of defences and an entrenched camp before the town.

It is announced from Tiflis that the Russian Caucasian army commenced operations yesterday by marching in two columns toward Erzroum and Batoum. The Grand Duke Michael has chosen Erivan.

as the headquarters of the Caucasian army. A war manifesto has been published there. The Czar has sent the Emperor of Austria an autograph letter repeating the assurances that Russia wishes for no annexations.

A telegram, dated Wednesday night, says:—"The Turks crossed the Danube at several points, and sent out flying corps to destroy the railways before the advance of the Russians."

ROUMANIA'S NEUTRALITY.

From advices from Vienna it seems that there are grounds for believing even now that if it were possible Roumania would prefer to avoid a collision with the Turks and maintain its present attitude of semi-neutrality. The same correspondent confirms the report that the Roumanians are everywhere retreating from their positions along the Danube, while the Russians are hastening to replace them. Kalafat particularly is mentioned as one of the places which has been evacuated. All the Roumanian troops go to Bucharest. Even if not much credit can be attached to the report that misunderstandings have already arisen between the Russian commanders and the Roumanian authorities, the backward movement would indicate that there is no intention to make, at any rate for the present, common cause with the Russians, but that, on the contrary, all the Roumanian forces are being collected to act according to circumstances.

FIGHTING IN ASIA MINOR.

The Russians have crossed the frontier of Asiatic Turkey at Alexandropole, on the road to Kars. Skirmishing is even reported to have commenced between the Russian and Turkish outposts near Kars. It will be remembered that the HERALD's special from Bucharest yesterday indicated this movement. There is, therefore, good reason for believing that Asia Minor is to be the seat of war for the present.

It is reported that a slight engagement has occurred in Armenia.

TURKEY'S REPLY TO RUSSIA.

Salvet Pacha, in reply to the manifesto of the Czar, has sent a long circular despatch to the Great Powers. It protests against a declaration of war, pointing out the efforts of Turkey to improve the position of the Christian and satisfy the demands of the Powers. In the absence, therefore, of any provocation on the part of Turkey Salvet Pacha declares the Porte is at a loss to understand Russia's attack and consequently appeals to the Treaty of Paris and the mediation of the Guaranteeing Powers. It is rumored at Constantinople that the Sultan will review the Army of the Danube. He has sent a telegraphic despatch to the Commander-in-Chief with orders that it be read to the troops. The authorities recommend that the newspapers observe moderation in their comments on passing events. In the Mosques Mussulmans are advised to keep cool and on good terms with their Christian fellow citizens. In the Chamber of Deputies yesterday several Christian members protested against Russia's assertion that she declared war for the protection of the Christians in Turkey. They declared they did not desire the protection of Russia. The Christians were ready to take part in the defence of the country.

THE RUSSIAN PEOPLE RESPOND.

After the promulgation of the Czar's manifesto the municipality of Moscow voted funds to provide 1,000 beds for the wounded, and an additional million of roubles for hospital appliances. They subsequently appointed a special committee to draw up an address to the Czar. A solemn service was held in all the churches of that city.

A STATE OF SEIGE DECLARED.

An imperial order was promulgated at St. Petersburg yesterday declaring Bessarabia, the littoral district of Kherson and the provinces of Tanrida and Crimea in a state of siege. Ships arriving at Odessa will be boarded at the Middle Fountain. The master and crew will be obliged to go below, and a Russian crew will navigate the ship to or from Odessa.

RUSSIAN PRESS SUSPENSIONS.

Telegrams from Berlin say two St. Petersburg journals have been suspended within a month for stating that the entire Russian army is being mobilized. There can be no doubt that the mobilization is extending, although the above statement is probably exaggerated. A strong reserve force is being drawn together near Kieff. Torpedoes are placed at exposed points on the Baltic shores.

THE LONDON PRESS ON THE CZAR'S DECLARATION.

The London press of yesterday unanimously condemned the Russian manifesto. Even the Daily News, which is the most lenient to Russia, said:—

We have to deal with a Russia in whose policy better or worse motives mingle. Unfortunately the action of the British government has tended to drive back nobler influences and foster a more ignoble and self-seeking one. The solitary action of Russia will almost necessarily be action primarily for Russian interests. The best hope of the Turkish Christians is the poor one of transference from Turkish to Russian despotism.

The Times said:—

Russia has hastened to stop all further negotiations and to act as if she alone had an interest in the tranquillization of Turkey; thus she has forfeited any right to speak in the name of Europe. Nor has she given the Powers the assurances they have a right to expect. Nothing is said in the same strain as in the Livadia declarations that Russia had no annexationist objects. It would doubtless be rash to infer from this that the Czar purposely leaves open the possibilities of annexation. His words at Livadia are as binding a pledge as he could have made in his manifesto, and we may presume he would, moreover, be restrained by obvious overwhelming motives of prudence; still the omission of assurances against annexation from the manifesto is a grave error. The Czar's manifesto and Prince Gortschakoff's circular are disappointing in their reticence and betray hastiness of action which invites severe condemnation.

Several French and English papers also commented on the omission of any assurances against annexation. The Standard considered the omission to be a most striking and ominous circumstance, which will cause and justify the darkest forebodings. It declared that the attempts of the manifesto to throw the responsibility of war upon Turkey were beneath notice, and said:—"Never was there a more unfortunate specimen of imperial logic." The Daily Telegraph said:—

We have been tricked and duped by Tartar diplomacy; but in policy and action we shall not be so easily dealt with, for we shall now have for a single consideration national interests. The nation waits unanimously to support whatever measure the government may judge necessary to safeguard those interests

The Post said:—

The conduct of a despotic and overbearing Empire will be resented by every free people. For ourselves we may safely affirm that we shall not look on patiently while the Cossacks trample down the Turkish constitution and bar our own road to the East.

ENGLAND PREPARING.

Orders have been issued from the War Office to British officers on leave of absence to rejoin their regiments immediately. This statement is made by an influential paper in the confidence of the government, and is regarded as ominous. It is also announced that the British fleet at Malta has been ordered to proceed eastward.

There was a Cabinet Council yesterday, and another will be held to-day. This is significant of anxious discussion and of weighty determinations. The subject of the discussion is probably the reply to Prince Gortschakoff's circular.

THE MONTENEGRO REBELLION.

The Turkish papers of Constantinople state that Suleiman Pacha has passed through the Duga defile, after repulsing the Montenegrins, and is now marching to Nicsics. Prince Nicholas of Montenegro and his staff have gone to the Albanian frontier. A despatch from Cattaro announces that the Montenegrin forces are advancing toward the frontier of Albania. The Miridites, fearing they might be surrounded by fourteen Turkish battalions and 2,000 bashi bazouks, have abandoned their positions, which were occupied by the Turks on Sunday.

COMMENTING ON VON MOLTKE'S SPEECH.

A majority of the Paris papers, particularly the République Française, express the opinion that General Von Moltke's declarations in the German Parliament on Tuesday were not intended as hostile to France. General Von Moltke's speech attracts as much attention in Berlin as the Russian manifestoes. It is generally assumed that General Von Moltke intended to tell the French that Germany is watching their armaments; that she is acquainted with the peculiar disposition of their troops; that she cannot conceive their immense military efforts to aim at anything else except revenge at the first fitting opportunity, and warning her that Germany will not allow her to profit by Oriental troubles for the possible pursuit of anti-Teutonic plans. The North German Gazette, of Berlin, says the firm basis of the alliance of the three Emperors for the peace of the Continent is not shaken even now. It will now have to stand the real test of localizing the conflict which might otherwise assume the character of a general war. The Berlin Poste regards Von Moltke's speech as a pacific demonstration, because it showed the groundlessness of the French apprehensions of attack from Germany and Germany's ardent desire for peace, the limit to which was only where the safety of Germany came in question. General Moltke has chosen the right moment for making the declaration when it is still possible to dissipate distrust by mutual amicable explanations. The leading Paris evening journals and the Temps, Debats and Moniteur Universel of yesterday consider the only object of Von Moltke's speech was to induce the Reichstag to vote the desired grant.

Von Moltke's speech caused a gloomy feeling in Paris, notwithstanding the tranquillizing assurances of the French papers.

THE NEUTRALITY OF THE DANUBE.

The Danube Commission, composed of delegates from the six great Powers, will meet at Galatz on May 7. They will attempt to secure the solemn engagement of both combatants to religiously respect neutral navigation and also the works in progress for the improvement of the navigation of the Lower Danube.

KING ALFONSO OPENS THE CORTES.

King Alfonso in person opened the session of the Cortes to-day. In the speech from the throne he declares that the relations of Spain with foreign Powers are more cordial than ever. The slight difficulties with England, the United States and Germany have been settled, including the Sooloo Island affair. He expressed the hope that the pacification of Cuba will shortly be effected. The state of political affairs prevents any reduction of the military or naval establishments. At a meeting of the Ministerial party Señor Canovas del Castillo declared that the liberal conservative party could not relinquish power as it had not accomplished its task.

The constitutional centralist Deputies have resolved not to participate in the debate on the reply to the royal speech.

THE PLAGUE IN PERSIA.

The plague has appeared at Resht, and it is causing three or four deaths daily. The mortality is likely to increase. Sanitary measures are being taken by the Persian government. There were 176 deaths at Bagdad from the plague between the 16th and 23d inst.

THE RUSSIAN FLEET.

THE GRAND DUKE ALEXIS READS THE DECLARATION OF WAR ON BOARD THE SVETLANA—A SOLEMN TE DEUM ON THE FLAGSHIP—ENTHUSIASM OF THE CREW.

The declaration of war of Russia against Turkey was yesterday announced to the officers and crews of the three vessels of the Russian fleet, being received with great enthusiasm. Shortly before ten o'clock the captains of the corvettes Bogatyr and Askold arrived on board the flagship Svetlana and passed to the Admiral's cabin on the gun deck. There they were met by Admiral Boutakoff and His Imperial Highness Captain the Grand Duke Alexis, commanding the Svetlana. The telegram from the Minister of the Marine at St. Petersburg, which had been received the night before, was then read, announcing the declaration of war made by the Czar against Turkey. Arrangements were then made for the simultaneous announcement to the fleet of the declaration of war, and the commandants of the corvettes left for their ships.

ON BOARD THE SVETLANA.

At eleven o'clock Captain His Imperial Highness the Grand Duke Alexis read to his crew assembled on the quarter deck the order of the Admiral announcing to the fleet the declaration of war and his hope that all would do their duty to their country and the Czar. The Grand Duke stood in front of the bridge, at his left stood Admiral Boutakoff and at his right Executive Officer Novossilsky and Flag Commander Alexieffs. The other officers stood in a body behind the Grand Duke, while the crew of over 400 men were massed in front of their captain. After the Grand Duke Alexis had finished reading the momentous order the enthusiasm of the crew culminated in a series of wild hurrahs.

As by a flag signal the officers of the other vessels had been notified the Admiral's order was read by the three captains at the same time to their respective crews, and at the same time from the three vessels of the fleet and from the throats of over a thousand Russian seamen broke on the air a tumult of energetic cheers. After the cheering had ceased on board the flagship Admiral Boutakoff addressed a few words to the officers and crew, expressing a hope that they would do all in their power for their country and that they would fight to the last drop of blood in their veins. To this speech the sailors responded with hurrahs, and the band of the flagship struck up the beautiful national anthem, all present uncovering during its performance.

THE TE DEUM.

Shortly after the ceremonies of the making known of the declaration of war the officers and crew assembled on that part of the gundeck where religious services are usually held to ask the blessing of Almighty God upon their arms in the war in which they had entered. The reverend chaplain of the frigate, Father Pahome, in his robes, assisted by the sailor choir, chanted a solemn Te Deum and invoked the blessing of God upon the Russian arms, the large congregation of officers and sailors devoutly kneeling during the ceremony. After the solemn service the assemblage of officers and seamen dispersed. The officers were in half full dress, wearing epaulettes and their various decorations.

The ceremonies on board the two other vessels of the fleet were similar to those on the flagship Svetlana.

CONDEMNED TO DEATH.

CONVICTION OF A NEGRO FOR KILLING A RAG PEDLER.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 25, 1877.

Frank Wilson, a negro, was sentenced to be hanged in this city to-day. The prisoner received the judgment of the Court without manifestations of grief, but claimed that his conviction was unsupported by proper evidence. The negro, in an isolated locality in this city, killed an old drunken rag pedler for a small sum of money which Wilson learned he had in his possession. The murderer had been in the company of the rag pedler during the evening of the crime, and at a late hour strangled and robbed him. The negro had previously endeavored to induce a female friend to assist him in robbing the old man, but she refused and followed the two men to a point near the scene of the crime, from which she witnessed the fatal work of the negro. The murderer escaped arrest for three months, having made his escape the day following the perpetration of the crime.

THE WINNER.

John Day is well known on the English turf, having run eight races in his two-year-old form, winning three of them, and he started five times as a three year-old, scoring one victory. His first appearance was at Brighton, August 8, 1875, for a sweepstakes of 10 sovs. each, 5 sovs. forfeit, with 100 sovs. added from the Brighton Race Fund, for two-year-olds, the winner to be sold at auction for 200 sovs.; if for 500 sovs., 10 lbs. extra; the winner to pay 25 sovs. for six dozen of claret for the Brighton Public Race dinner; half a mile. The colt scored a victory, beating Daisy, bay filly by Rosicrucian and Fromage. His second appearance was at Doncaster, September 14, when he ran a match for £1,000 with Lizzie Distin, five furlongs, and made a dead heat with the filly. John Day's next appearance was at the Newmarket First October, when he ran for the Snailwell Stakes, valued at £210, five furlongs and 140 yards, and won, beating four others. He started the day following for the First Nursery Handicap of £250, three furlongs, 217 yards, and was third. Brigg Boy won, with Rosinante second. Twelve were behind John Day. At the Newmarket Second October he won a plate of £240, five furlongs and 140 yards, beating a field of seven. Two days after this he was fourth for the Ditch Mile Nursery Handicap of £260, Hadrada, Hengist and Gavani being in front of him at the finish. And he was once more beaten in his two-year-old form, this time for the New Nursery Stakes (a handicap), at the Newmarket Houghton. The distance was five furlongs and the colt had 122 lbs. on his back. He was fourth, the winner, Knight of the Bath, carrying only 97 lbs., and the other two a like weight. John Day began his three-year-old racing at the Newmarket Craven meeting, on Friday, April 20, by winning a plate of £130, the Rowley mile. His next appearance was at Chester for the Chester Tradesmen's Cup of £1,620, two miles and a quarter. For this event there were eighteen starters and the race was won by Tam O' Shanter, John Day being a long way from the front at the finish. The colt was next engaged in the Cesarewitch Stakes, which was won by Roseberry, and John Day was eleventh out of the thirty-four starters. At the Newmarket Houghton for the Jockey Club Cup (the Cesarewitch course) he was beaten by Bracomer—Hopbloom, Nougat, Craigmiller and Claremont being behind him. He closed his racing for 1876 with a run for the Liverpool Autumn cup, about a mile and a half. There were twenty-four starters, and the race was won by Footstep with 83 lbs. up, John Day being about the middle of the defeated ones at the finish.

MEXICO.

ARREST OF THE EX-SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY—THE SUTTER AFFAIR—GENERAL CORTINA SET AT LIBERTY.

HAVANA, April 25, 1877.

The steamer City of Havana, from Vera Cruz, arrived this morning. She brings the following news from the Mexican Republic:—

CITY OF MEXICO, April 16, 1877.

Political arrests continue to be made. Señor F. Mejia, formerly Secretary of the Treasury under President Lerdo, has been imprisoned for alleged malpractices during the past two years.

Governor Jiminez, who arrested Mr. Sutter, the American Consul at Acapulco, without cause, and kept him in confinement three weeks, released him by order of President Diaz, but without redress. The American residents here are very indignant at the outrage.

The Courier de la Europe has suspended publication. The Two Republics will probably discontinue its issues on May 1. Both journals have all along favored President Lerdo.

President Diaz has declared the House of Deputies illegal as a Congress. The Senate is called to meet in September, when both bodies will form a constitutional Congress.

The Church party are indignant because Diaz disavows any alliance with them.

The original Tuxtepec party shows signs of dissatisfaction with Diaz, and threaten to oppose him.

A formidable conspiracy has been discovered in San Luis Potosi, and a number of arrests have been made in consequence.

Juan Mendes will probably succeed Señor Ogoson as Minister of War.

General Cortina has been set at liberty by Diaz on parole.

THE MEXICAN BORDER.

THE REPORTED CONCENTRATION OF TROOPS AT LAREDO AUTHORITATIVELY DENIED.

WASHINGTON, April 25, 1877.

There is no truth in the report from Matamoros that the United States government is concentrating a force near Laredo in furtherance of a demonstration against Mexico in the interest either of ourselves or of the ex-Mexican President Lerdo. Secretary McCrary says that the reported concentration of troops is not in obedience to any orders from Washington and is probably only a local movement directed by General Ord to repress or punish some cattle stealing band.

THE MOCTEZUMA.

SPAIN MAKING STRENUOUS EFFORTS TO INDUCE HONDURAS TO DELIVER ONE OF THE MOCTEZUMA'S CREW.

TRUXILLO, Honduras, April 10, 1877.

In the early part of February one of the pirates of the Moctezuma was captured on the Mosquito coast by a party of Honduras soldiers and brought to Truxillo, where he was imprisoned in the fort. On the same day the Spanish steamer-of-war Tornado arrived here, and her commander demanded the pirate from the military authorities, who refused to deliver him. Toward the end of February the Spanish man-of-war Isabella Catolica arrived here for the same purpose, bringing sufficient proof of the complicity of the pirate (who is, a Dominican named Pardo) in the Moctezuma crime. The authorities of Truxillo not being vested with the necessary power to solve the matter, it was referred to the capital, Comayajud, distant 300 miles from here, and about a month after the President answered that the matter could only be treated direct between the two governments of Spain and Honduras, so the Isabella Catolica left for Cuba, it is supposed to return with a special envoy to the government of Honduras to claim the pirate above mentioned.

OPENING OF NAVIGATION.

QUEBEC, April 25, 1877.

The ship Lake Erie, from Glasgow, arrived at nine o'clock this morning. She is the first arrival from sea at this port this season.

A schooner with thirty pilots on board left for Bic this morning.

A steamer from Montreal is expected to arrived to-morrow.

THE FRENCH-CANADIAN PILGRIMS.

SUICIDE.

LONDON, April 25, 1877.

Samuel Welch, an old and well known citizen of this place, was found dead on the Exhibition Ground last evening. A vial which had contained strychnine was found near the body. An inquest to-day indicates that it is a case of suicide.

ROWING CHALLENGE.

ST. JOHN, N. B., April 25, 1877.

Wallace Ross has issued a challenge to Warren Smith, of Halifax, to row a three or four mile race on the Kennebecassis or Bedford Basin, for from $300 to $500, during the month of June.

WASHINGTON.

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, April 25, 1877.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE BOARD OF INDIAN COMMISSIONERS.

The eighth annual report of the Board of Indian Commissioners to the President has just been made public. This report embraces a review of what has been done under the peace system inaugurated in 1869 by President Grant, and suggestions as to what more can be done toward civilizing and making self-sustaining these "wards of the nation," as they were styled by President Grant. The Board emphatically indorse the report of the Sioux Commissioners, and say:—

We would, if possible, have the public conscience aroused to a full comprehension of the utter want of good faith, the oft repeated violation of the most sacred promises and agreements which have characterized the intercourse of this nation with its helpless wards.

The consolidation of agencies, where it can be effected without existing treaties, is earnestly urged as an important element in the work of Indian civilization. They suggest that a restriction sufficient to prevent roaming and the bringing of the Indians to live in houses will be a step in the right direction. The collection of the less advanced with those who have measurably acquired the arts of civilization would teach the former, by daily observation, that thrift, enterprise and energy always produce their legitimate fruits of civilization and self-dependence. This arrangement, with the early allotment of lands in severalty, under a regulation forbidding their alienation for two or three generations, would speedily result in the breaking up of tribal relations and go far toward the successful solution of the Indian problem. Besides benefiting the Indians this plan would throw in the market much valuable land and greatly reduce the present expensive method of managing the Indian Department of the government.

An elaborate statement in general and in detail is presented, showing by statistics the advance made in the eight years of the present policy. Of the 266,000 Indians in the United States, Alaska not included, 104,818 now wear citizens' dress. Since 1868 the number of houses occupied by Indians have increased from 7,476 to 55,718, of which 1,702 were built during the last year. Schools have increased during the same period from 11 to 344 and teachers from 134 to 437. The number of scholars was then 4,718, now they are 11,338. There are 187 churches on Indian reservations and 27,215 Indians are church members. The area of land cultivated in 1868 was 54,207, in 1876, 318,194.

The report concludes with the following recommendations:—

First—Immediate compliance on the part of the government with the terms of existing treaties with all the Indians.

Second—Appropriations for consolidating agencies.

Third—Generous appropriations for educational purposes.

Fourth—Discontinuance of tribal relations.

Fifth—Extension of law for protection of life and property.

Sixth—Allotments of land.

Seventh—Establishment of industrial and agricultural boarding schools, compelling attendance of all between seven and seventeen years of age.

Eighth—Issue of supplies to be made to heads of families.

Ninth—Increase of salaries of Indian agents.

GENERAL WASHINGTON DESPATCHES.

WASHINGTON, April 25, 1877.

THE INDIAN PEACE COMMISSION AT THE WHITE HOUSE.

The Board of Indian Commissioners, commonly known as the Indian Peace Commission, now in session in this city, composed of John D. Long, of Maine; C. A. Stebbing, of New Jersey; William H. Lyon, of New York; A. C. Barstone, of Rhode Island; William Stickney, District of Columbia, and C. M. Kingsley, of New York, accompanied by Secretary Schurz and Indian Commissioner Smith, called upon the President to-day for the purpose of learning his views on the Indian peace policy inaugurated by President Grant at the beginning of his administration.

Mr. Long addressed the President in relation to the result of the peace policy, and in the course of his remarks said they hoped their peace policy with the Indians would be as successful as the peace policy of President Hayes in the South.

The President replied that he had not consulted with his Cabinet on the subject, but he knew no reason why the Indian policy of the late administration should not be continued. Secretary Schurz remarked that while in private life he had given his earnest support to this policy and he saw no reason why he should not sustain it as the Secretary of the Interior. The commission were much gratified with their interview.

THE EXTRA SESSION—FORTHCOMING PROCLAMATION OF THE PRESIDENT.

The President's proclamation to convene Congress in extra session on the 4th of June is in a state of forwardness and will, probably, be issued within a few days. Its preparation has of late been delayed to await the settlement of the Louisiana difficulty and also with a view to receiving full reports from the various executive departments as to what legislation in the nature of deficiency appropriations, &c., should be recommended.

HUNG BY A MOB.

LYNCH LAW TAKES AWFUL VENGEANCE ON A CONVICTED MURDERER.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 25, 1877.

On Tuesday morning, at three o'clock, twenty armed men entered Dover Court House and forced the Sheriff to surrender the keys to the prisoners' cells. They then took William Mockbee out a short distance from the town, hung him to the limb of a tree and shot him eight times.

MOCKBEE'S CRIME.

Mockbee and Jack Wilson are the two negroes who brutally murdered Willie McClish last August and were convicted and sentenced by the Dover Court to be hanged. They appealed to the Supreme Court and were remanded for new trial. They obtained an order of severance last week, when Wilson had his second trial, and was sentenced to be hanged May 25. Mockbee obtained a change of venue to Houston county, and the idea gained credence that he would come clear and cheat justice on some technicality in law, which no doubt instigated the lynching. No doubt Mockbee was guilty and led Wilson into the crime.

The lynching was conducted in a very quiet manner, and the citizens of the place had no knowledge of the affair until business hours next day.

Wilson was left in prison to await the execution of his sentence.

ALMOST LYNCHED.

A MURDERER COVERTLY CONVEYED TO STATE PRISON TO ESCAPE POPULAR FURY.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 25, 1877.

A special despatch from Columbia to the Nashville American states that it was rumored at two P. M. that Israel Thomasson would probably be spirited away on the evening train for Nashville, but nothing definite could be learned regarding the matter. A few moments before the arrival of the train a hack drove from the jail with the Sheriff and his deputy, and was driven with the convict hurriedly to the depot. As soon as this became known citizens collected in groups and uttered exclamations of indignation. Had there been more time the officials would have been mobbed. The outspoken sentiment of the people is for the organization of a vigilance committee to attend to all such cases in future. When Thomasson was told of the commutation of his sentence he became almost prostrate and expressed great fears of a mob. He did not feel safe even when he arrived in Nashville, and asked his guards to take him double quick to the Penitentiary, so possessed was he of fear, and then that the doors be well barred and bolted.

Thomasson had been condemned to be hanged to-morrow for the murder of Rufus C. Jackson, and the Governor, at the recommendation of the Supreme Court, commuted his sentence to imprisonment for life. An indignation meeting was held on the subject at Columbia to-night and the judges were burned in effigy.

A WRIT OF QUO WARRANTO.

WAS MR. WALTER L. LIVINGSTON ELECTED SURROGATE OF KINGS COUNTY?

The quo warranto proceedings in the action brought by Abram H. Dailey against Walter L. Livingston, Surrogate of Kings county, to oust the latter from office, were commenced in the Supreme Court, before Judge Gilbert and a jury, yesterday. General Philip Crooke, counsel for the Surrogate, who opened the case for the defence, in his address to the jury argued that Mr. Livingston had the official certificate of election, and the law made that conclusive evidence until it was overthrown. He placed the certificate in evidence. The clerk who gave the certificate of office and filed the bond of Mr. Livingston testified to the fact, and the defence rested. General Benjamin F. Tracy, who, with others, appeared for Mr. Dailey, then moved that judgment of ouster be issued against the present incumbent, on the ground of the insufficiency of proof of defendant's election. The motion was denied by Judge Gilbert.

The Deputy County Clerk, George G. Barnard, then took the witness stand, and testified as to the tally sheets of the Board of Canvassers. In one place the vote reads 231 for Mr. Dailey, and in another 331. Each item in the vote on the tally sheet was testified to, and the statement of the canvass of the vote of the entire county was then offered. The entire vote for Surrogate was 93,211, of which Livingston received 46,526 and Dailey 46,238. The scattering votes were then read and President Jourdan, of the Board of Police, testified as to the returns placed in his office. Counsel for Mr. Livingston conceded 200 votes to Mr. Dailey in the First district of the Tenth ward and the Fourth district of the Ninth ward, two canvassers having testified to the mistakes. This reduces Mr. Livingston's majority to 48. The trial, which will be resumed to-day, will doubtless occupy the attention of the court for a week or ten days.

THE VACANT COMMISSIONERSHIP.

It is understood that Mayor Ely will not send in another name to the Board of Aldermen for Police Commissioner at its meeting to-day. An informal opinion has been given by the Corporation Counsel deciding that no definite time is mentioned under the law as to nominations by the Mayor after the first name has been rejected. In the meanwhile Mr. Erhardt holds over.

The rumor that Mr. Nicholas Muller will be appointed to the vacant Commissionership if he resigns his place as Congressman has been contradicted by Mayor Ely and the gentleman himself.

General Sickles and Register Patrick H. Jones called upon the Mayor yesterday in order to press the name of General Pleasanton for Police Commissioner. A committee of Nineteenth ward citizens also called in the interest of Mr. Christopher Pullmann.

DR. M'GLYNN LEAVES FOR ROME.

The Rev. Dr. McGlynn yesterday took his departure for Rome on the steamship Bothnia, being bound for the Holy City to represent the Cardinal at the coming celebration of the Pope's fiftieth anniversary of his episcopacy. There were a number of Dr. McGlynn's clerical and lay friends on the wharf of the Cunard pier for fully an hour before the departure of the vessel at two P. M. Affectionate marks of good will were abundantly given expression to in the cheers and goodbyes which the hundreds of those present gave Dr. McGlynn as the steamer was slowly leaving the dock.

On Saturday next Rev. Father Kearney, Rev. Father Griffin and Rev. Father Edwards will leave for Rome in the City of Berlin.

THE OIL TRADE.

There was a meeting of the oil trade in the Produce Exchange yesterday and some rules supplementary to those adopted last week were drawn up. These provide that verbal contracts, when satisfactorily proven, shall have the same standing as written contracts; but the claim under such contracts must be made on the day of the alleged transaction or on the next business day thereafter.

MARGINS.

Either party to a contract prior to or upon signing the same shall have the right to call an original margin of $1 per barrel, and either party may call for margins to meet variations in the market of not less than 2½c. per gallon or $1 per barrel. Margins must be deposited in such trust company as may be designated for the purpose by the Finance Committee.

Margins called for at three o'clock must be deposited before twelve M. next day.

The following is the form of contract agreed to for oils sold for future delivery:—

In consideration of $1 in hand paid, the receipt of which is hereby acknowledged, —— have this day sold to (or bought from) 100 barrels of prime oil at —— cents per gallon, deliverable at seller's (or buyer's) option. This contract is made in view of and in all respects subject to the bylaws and rules established by the New York Produce Exchange in force at this date. In case of any disagreement between the parties to this contract it shall be referred to the Committee on Oils, whose decision shall be final.

The following gentlemen were appointed as the Committee on Oils:—Messrs. Edward A. Johnson, Thomas G. Hunt, P. M. Millspaugh, Sidney H. Knowles and William J. Bower.

THE STOCK EXCHANGE.

The Governing Committee of the Stock Exchange met after the close of business yesterday. The Committee on Nominations reported as candidates for membership in the Governing Committee, in place of Messrs. John T. Denny and Brayton Ives, who decline a renomination, Messrs. H. G. Stebbins and G. L. Haight.

PEDESTRIAN CHALLENGE.

NEW YORK, April 25, 1877.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

Would you please insert in your paper that I have an amateur walker whom I will back with $200 against Mr. William E. Harding for a three mile walk at any time or place, in the neighborhood of this city, that he might name. Yours sincerely,

HUGH SCOTT, No. 6 Beach street.

DEATH OF AN ARSENIC EATER.

William Brooke, a young man who died on the 17th inst. at his residence, No. 16 Hope street, Williamsburg, under suspicious circumstances, was found by a coroner's jury yesterday to have "come to his death by an overdose of arsenic, administered by his own hand, without suicidal intent." The evidence on which this verdict was founded showed a curious idiosyncrasy. Brooke, who was only nineteen years of age, was a manufacturer of philosophical instruments at No. 20 West Fourth street, in this city. In the business arsenic and acids are freely used, and while every workman has free access to these they are all well aware of the danger attached to them, and almost every method of using them. Nothing, therefore, was thought of any of them visiting the arsenic room during the day, but since the death of young Brooke it has been remembered that he used to pay it a visit occasionally during the noon tide hour, it is now surmised to take a portion of that terrible mineral poison.

Several witnesses were examined, including his relatives, fellow workmen, employer and friends. They all gave him a good character, with only one blemish, and that was drinking—not to a great excess, but regularly, getting under its influence only on Wednesdays and Saturdays, and then it would appear he would take a dose of arsenic to hide its effects from his parents. On the 16th inst. he thus took a dose which resulted in his death on the next morning, and the verdict given above.

IMPORTANT RAILROAD SUIT.

CREDITORS' CLAIMS AND STOCKHOLDERS' RESPONSIBILITY—IMPORTANT DECISION BY JUDGE GILBERT.

Judge Gilbert, of the Supreme Court, Kings county, has rendered a decision in the matter of the suit brought by the creditors of the Hudson Avenue Railroad Company to recover for breach of duty as directors, and to compel them as stockholders to pay up the amount illegally taken under arrangement with one Joseph Cowperthwaite. The company was organized in 1867 for the purpose of operating a road from Bridge street ferry to Greenwood Cemetery, a distance of four miles. Soon after the organization of the company an agreement was made with Mr. Cowperthwaite to build one mile of the road for $50,000 in bonds and $25,000 in stock of the company. The agreement was executed by James A. Van Brunt, president of the company, and at the same time Cowperthwaite executed an assignment of the contract back to Van Brunt. Other persons were then taken into the company, who were to furnish the funds to perform the contract and divide the stock. About one mile of the road was built, and they divided stock and bonds to the amount of about $125,000. The company, after a brief existence, dissolved, and a receiver was appointed and suit instituted for the benefit of the creditors.

Judge Gilbert says, in his decision, that there is no doubt respecting the liability of the defendants to pay the amount unpaid upon their formal subscriptions to the capital stock. In whatever way the stock is acquired, or upon an ordinary subscription, payable in money, or upon contract with the coporation, whereby payment for the stock was to be made in another mode, unless the stock has been actually paid for, the holder of it is individually liable to the creditors of the corporation to an amount equal to the amount unpaid on the stock held by him, for all the debts and liabilities of the company until the whole amount of the capital stock so held by him shall have been paid to the company. By means of the contract with Cowperthwaite the defendants and their associates received in stock of the corporation $75,000 and bonds thereof amounting to $50,000; and the corporation received therefor what cost those persons not more than one-fourth of those sums. There is no principle of law or equity on which such a transaction can be sanctioned. The defendants must be charged with the nominal amount of stock held by them, and credited only with the sums paid upon their subscriptions, and the value of the property so actually received by the corporation on account of the stock issued pursuant to the contract with Cowperthwaite. The Court appoints Counsellor John Greenwood as referee to take and state the account between the parties and to ascertain and report the debts of the corporation, which have been presented to the receiver, and against which the statute of limitation had not run when this action was commenced.

THE COLUMBIA BALL.

Invitations to the Columbia ball, to be held at Delmonico's on the 27th inst., are now obtained only with great difficulty. The Grand Dukes Alexis and Constantine and suite, besides a number of other distinguished visitors, are among the expected guests. The managers report the subscriptions to the boat fund a great success. All the arrangements have been made on the most elaborate scale, and the very select and exclusive nature of the company will make the ball one of the most recherche of the closing season. The affair is under the charge of the following gentlemen and lady managers:—H. P. Brown, G. B. Cornell, R. A. Parker, Oakley Rhinelander, J. A. Booth, G. P. Erhard, Mrs. F. A. P. Barnard, C. F. Chandler, Murray Nairne, William Rhinelander, Mrs. Judge Barrett, John Astor, William Astor, John Jay, Alex Van Rensselaer, G. T. Strong, G. L. Rives, General Dix, James F. Ruggles, Robert L. THE COURTS.

Judge Wallace on Jurors' Extra Compensation.

ANOTHER REMINISCENCE OF THE RING.

An English Agent of Erie After His Pay.

NEW RULES IN BANKRUPTCY.

At the opening of the proceedings yesterday, in the United States Circuit Court, before Judge Wallace, in the case of the Emma Silver Mining Company against Treanor W. Park and H. H. Baylis, the proposition of counsel for extra allowance to the jury was commented and decided upon by the Court. Judge Wallace said that while he had no doubt the jury had suffered in their business, and while he appreciated the motive which prompted the proposition, still he would have to refuse to allow the extra compensation. The compensation of jurors is fixed by law, and this Court has no power to decrease it; neither should the Court increase it, directly or indirectly. It would also, in his opinion, set a precedent which might prove dangerous to justice and be abused, even to the bribery of a jury. He regretted in the case of the present jury to have to deny the proposition, but in view of probable consequences which might follow from such a precedent he felt compelled to do so. Mr. Stoughton then for the plaintiffs in the suit, the Emma Silver Mining Company, proceeded with his summing up to the jury, contending that there was fraud and deceit practised by the defendants upon the plaintiffs, under which they had purchased the mine. Mr. Stoughton had not closed his argument when the court adjourned.

NOT IN CONTEMPT.

While ex-Judge Gross was on the bench of the Marine Court a cause was tried before him in which one Harris was plaintiff and Lawyer Morange defendant. Now, Morange wants to appeal, and for that purpose applied to ex-Judge Gross to "settle the case." The Judge did "settle" it in accordance with the official report taken from the stenographer's minutes, but these minutes, Morange claim, are in some respects erroneous. He then applied to the Judge to make an affidavit of what actually transpired on the trial. This was refused. Morange then obtained an order from the Court appointing a referee to take the testimony of Judge Gross as to the facts sought for. The Judge appeared before the referee, but refused to be sworn or testify, on the ground that he could not be examined as to what transpired before him in his judicial capacity. With the report of the referee in his hand Morange appeared in court and obtained an order directing ex-Judge Gross to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt for his refusal to testify. The matter came up for argument on the question of contempt, before Judge Sinnott, in Marine Court, Chambers, yesterday. After argument on both sides Judge Sinnott held that the circumstances as presented by the report of the referee did not show ex-Judge Gross to be in contempt, and the motion to punish him for it was therefore denied.

EIGHTEENTH WARD MARKET JOB.

Suit was brought in the name of the Mayor against William Haw and two others, Commissioners for the erection of the Eighteenth Ward Market, to recover $200,898 61, alleged to have been fraudulently overpaid in connection with the building of the market. The complaint in the case states that the defendants were the third series of Commissioners appointed for the job; that the second Commissioners contracted with Charles Vandervoort to erect the market at a cost of $70,404, with permission to provide for extra work. They allowed for the latter purpose $54,104 58, and the contractors added to the extent of $203,323 47. This extra work, the complaint alleges, was worth less than $100,000. Of the amount paid out for such extra work Charles Vandervoort got $145,156 50; Charles Guidet, $8,512 38; S. D. Hatch, $3,385 69, and parties who did no work, $8,230 73. This was before January 1, 1870. After that date the defendants issued warrants for $68,427, with intent to have them cashed, and on which $35,601 91 was paid. To the complaint the defendants interposed a demurrer, which Judge Lawrence yesterday overruled. Leave is granted to defendants, however, to answer on payment of costs of suit thus far.

ANCIENT LIGHTS.

Albert Netter brought a suit against Samuel D. Babcock under the following circumstances, which were developed on the trial commenced before Chief Justice Daly yesterday in the Special Term of the Court of Common Pleas:—It seems that the trustees of Columbia College in March, 1867, leased to Henry M Field some property on Fifty-first street, west of Fifth avenue, for eleven years and eleven months from November 1, 1868, with the privilege of two renewals. Field put a dwelling on one of the lots, and put in it six windows looking toward property owned by the defendants. Field afterward assigned his lease, which finally came to Margaret A. Courtney, who assigned it to the plaintiff. The six windows were barricaded by the defendants; but when the property was in the possession of Margaret Courtney, Field, the original lessee, agreed to take down the barricade in consideration of the transfer of a gore, which jutted into defendant's property. The defendant put up the barricade again, and the present action is for an injunction and $5,000 damages. The defence is that the permission given to Mrs. Courtney was merely a revokable license and no covenant, and did not pass by assignment. Messrs. A. J. Dittenhoefer and Runkle & Englehardt appeared for plaintiff; Martin & Smith for defendants.

RULES ON BANKRUPTCY.

Judge Blatchford yesterday issued the following rules on bankruptcy:—A cause in bankruptcy is not deemed to be finally disposed of until an order is entered in the District Court declaring its termination. After the expiration of seven months from the adjudication of bankruptcy and of two months from the final passing of the accounts of the assignees in bankruptcy under section 5,096 of the Revised Statutes and on the certificates of the clerk and register in charge of the case that no proceedings in the bankruptcy remains pending undetermined, and on the application of the assignee in bankruptcy or of any creditor who has proved his debt, such order may on notice to the bankrupt be entered.

ERIE'S UNPAID AGENT.

John A. C. Gray, a former agent of the Erie Railway Company, in England, has a claim against the company for $9,410. The justice of the claim and correctness of its amount is not disputed on the part of the company. Application was made to Judge Donohue, in Supreme Court, Chambers, yesterday, on the part of Mr. Gray, for an order directing the receiver of the company to pay the amount. The Judge said that, as the debt had not been reduced to judgment, and having no preference as against mortgage creditors, he did not see how he could grant the order asked for. He therefore denied it.

SUMMARY OF LAW CASES.

Edward Jones and Thomas Cappenger, employed as firemen on board the steamship City of Berlin, were yesterday held by Commissioner Shields on a charge of smuggling into this port twelve dozen pearl-handled pocket knives.

The report of F. H. Churchill, E. G. Lawrence and George H. Swords, commissioners for the opening of 175th street, between the Kingsbridge road and Tenth avenue, was confirmed by Judge Donohue, in Supreme Court, Chambers, yesterday. The report shows the total award to be $68,427, the costs $1,221 92, and the amount to be charged against the city and the property owners $69,648 92—half against each.

Patrick Carey brought a suit against the city. The plaintiff was driving up Nineteenth street, between Fifth and Madison avenues, last winter, and the snow concealing a hole in the street, his sleigh was thrown into the hole and was broken considerably. The case was tried yesterday before Judge J. F. Daly and resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff for $337.

The will of John Kress, a lager beer brewer, who left an estate valued at about $300,000, was yesterday admitted to probate at the Surrogate's Court. The testator leaves all his property to his widow, Susannah, on condition that she does not remarry. In case of her remarrying the estate is to be equally divided between her and her children. At her death the entire estate, as provided by the will, goes to the children. The widow is made the executrix of the will and is to continue the brewery business in her name.

Dolan Burrall obtained by default a judgment for $31,673 against Peter Herner. The parties were once partners in Peruvian railroad contracts, and out of this grew the alleged claim of plaintiff. Yesterday, before Judge Donohue, in Supreme Court, Chambers, a motion was made on the part of defendant to open this default. The defendant was not present, he being in jail in Philadelphia since Good Friday, in a suit brought there on the judgment obtained here. But his son made an affidavit on his behalf in which he recounts all the troubles and mishaps which befell his father and his contracts in Peru by reason of a revolution there, finally compelling him to sell out his contract. Under all these circumstances he says plaintiff has got into defendant's debt $6,000. Plaintiff responds by alleging false accounts against his partner and a desire to cheat him. The motion was denied.

In the suit of F. M. Bangs against the Ocean National Bank, on trial before Judge Van Hoesen, in the Court of Common Pleas, Chief Justice Davis was yesterday placed on the stand to testify as an expert as to the value of Mr. Bangs' professional services rendered to the bank. Mr. Da Costa objected to any testimony by the Judge to any fact that he did not witness himself. This objection, however, was overruled. A verdict for $1,998 was given for the plaintiff.

In the cases of the United States against Duff & Co. and Jackson & Co., charged with violation of the lottery laws, the defendants by advice of their counsel, ex-Judge Dittenhoefer, will put themselves on examination on Monday next before United States Commissioner Shields. This course is adopted in preference to the plea of guilty submitted by other parties lately similarly charged with the penalty of the fine attached thereto. Should the defendants after examination be held by the Commissioner, counsel will bring up the case on habeas corpus proceedings before the Circuit Court.

A suit was brought by A. L. Grabfelder and another against Abraham Cohn to recover on a promissory note for $318 14, and the cause was tried yesterday, before Judge Larremore, in the Court of Common Pleas. The defence was that the plaintiffs, who are insurance agents, insured the life of one Mack for the benefit of defendant's two children; that they had no legal or equitable interest in Mack's life, and that the policy was what is termed a wager policy; that the note was given for premiums on this policy, and that the policy being void the note was also void. Judge Larremore directed a verdict for the plaintiffs for the full amount claimed.

Jane Catherine Lottimer, who owns property adjoining the Hotel Brunswick, on Fifth avenue, brought a suit against the proprietors to restrain the building of a back extension to the hotel contrary to an alleged previous agreement. The case came before Chief Justice Daly on an application for an injunction. The defendants in their affidavit in opposition to the application state, among other things, that they do not intend to build an extension, but merely a rustic arbor with an awning for the accommodation and comfort of their guests, that the arbor will be profusely decorated with flowers and will be an ornament. It is also stated that the rent of the Hotel Brunswick is $75,000 a year, and that if the injunction should be granted it would make a difference of $400 a day to the defendants. Chief Justice Daly refused to grant the application.

The Tribune Association published the decision of Surrogate Hutchings admitting to probate the will of the late James B. Taylor. For this service a claim was put in against the estate for $1,668 50. This was disallowed, and suit was then commenced against Laura S. Taylor and Edward H. Tracy, as executrix and executor, to hold them personally liable. Mr. Rufus F. Andrews appeared for both defendants, and permitted judgment by default, upon the understanding that no personal liability would be enforced against Mr. Tracy. In this, it seems, Mr. Tracy was disappointed, as he now seeks to have the judgment opened, so far as it relates to him. This application, made to Judge Donohue yesterday, was supported by the statement of Mr. Andrews as to what his understanding was when he permitted judgment to be entered. The default was opened by the court on condition defendant pay all the costs.

An order of arrest issued from the Marine Court, yesterday, at the suit of Maria Schaik against Edward Michael, for slander. The plaintiff asks for $2,000 damages, and bail was fixed in the order at $1,000. The slander complained of was such as tended to assail the moral character of the plaintiff. As a sort of aggravation of the slander, the plaintiff says that, immediately after uttering it, the defendant came into her room and flung a lighted cigar at her; that the lighted cigar alighted in her bosom, causing her to start suddenly, which sudden start caused her child to drop, which drop caused convulsions, which convulsions caused the necessity of calling in a doctor.

DEFRAUDING A TEMPERANCE SOCIETY.

Last week the officers and members of the St. Ann's R. C. T. A. B. Society, whose rooms are in the Plimpton Building, discovered that their treasurer, William Birmingham, of No. 94 Fourth avenue, had misappropriated the funds set apart for the rent of the premises, and had him arrested on the charge of embezzlement. He refused to give up the books, but he was subsequently compelled to do so, and on investigation it was found that nearly $500 had been misappropriated. On being arraigned yesterday the prisoner pleaded guilty, and was sent to the Penitentiary for six months.

GENERAL SESSIONS—PART 2.

Before Judge Gildersleeve.

THE KILLING OF FRANCIS REILLY.

A young man named John Daly, who is jointly indicted with Francis McCormack, James Dougherty, John Daniels and James Lynch for the killing of Francis Reilly, on the 4th of March, at the corner of Stanton and Goerck streets, was yesterday arraigned for trial by Assistant District Attorney Herring, Mr. William F. Howe appearing for the defence. Mr. Herring, in his opening, detailed the facts of the case. The deceased, Francis Reilly, was a young man who was engaged in the employment of driving a truck. He seemed to have had a considerable acquaintance among the young men of his neighborhood, and on the evening in question he and his brother Edward were together part of the time. The deceased entered a saloon, where he met other young men. Later in the evening Francis Reilly was attacked by several parties, and was subsequently encountered at the corner of Stanton and Goerck streets. On that occasion Daly, the prisoner, was alleged to have stabbed the deceased while others beat him with stones and another with a bale stick. Reilly went to the station house, where his wounds were attended to. On the way from the station house to his home he was again attacked, and it was claimed that these wounds resulted in his death on the 6th of March. William Kopp was examined and testified that he kept a saloon at No. 320 Stanton street, and that on the night in question, hearing a disturbance in the street, looked out of the window and saw several parties beating the deceased, among them being the prisoner who had a knife in his hand. He also gave evidence as to the expressions made use of by those present. Edward Reilly, brother of the deceased, testified that the prisoner admitted having stabbed him, giving as a reason that he was "too fresh." Dr. Frank Newman, who attended the deceased, described the several wounds, but in reply to Mr. Howe stated that he did not consider any of them dangerous at the time of his examination. The further hearing of the case will be resumed to-day.

THE NEW YORK BENCH SHOW.

GROWING POPULARITY OF THE COMING DOG SHOW—SOME OF THE CELEBRATED ANIMALS THAT ARE TO COMPETE FOR HONORS.

To the student in canine matters, or, indeed, to the observer of human nature, a visit to the office of Mr. Charles Lincoln, Superintendent of the Westminster Kennel Club, during the past few days was full of interest. Here the "elegant" of sporting circles, who keep kennels of setters and pointers merely for an occasional week at snipe on the Jersey meadows or a fortnight at "chickens" on Western prairies in the fall, are to be seen. Here was also the "workman," half gentleman and half professional, in velveteen shooting coat, who combines profit with sport and who always has the "best dog in the world, sir." And again was to be seen the fancier, keen-eyed and shrewd, with a crossbred terrier at his heels, but a two and a half pound skye in a glass cage at home. Mingling with the crowd were also ladies, after all the truest lovers of dogs, who were awaiting their turn to enter their pugs or their terriers, or, in many instances, dogs of the larger breeds, for the coveted honors. Yesterday was the last day for closing the home entries, for, although foreign exhibitors have the privilege of an extended period (May 1), the lists may be said to have been completed last night.

ONE THOUSAND DOGS ON EXHIBITION.

The exact figures cannot be given until delayed letters have been received, but it is well within bounds to say that considerably over one thousand dogs will be brought before the judges for examination; and it must be borne in mind that these are all dogs of high degree, whose owners think them qualified in the necessary points to carry off the prizes. In variety they rank from the champion setter—the acknowledged leader of his race—to the Japanese spaniel, the Esquimaux, or the hairless Mexican, who are classed as miscellaneous.

BENCH SHOWS IN AMERICA.

It is now only four years since bench shows were first inaugurated in this country. At that time a few sportsmen of this city and vicinity suggested to the managers of the Queens County Agricultural Society, whose annual meeting is held at Mineola, L. I., to hold a bench show of dogs in connection therewith. Probably less than one hundred dogs were gotten together on that occasion, but the fever spread, and, stimulated by the demand which had sprung up for fine dogs for field purposes, shows of a similar nature were held in rapid succession at Watertown, Springfield, Chicago, Geneseo, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Detroit and other cities. This competition led to the importation of the best of the English sporting dogs, and a very large number of those entered for competition at Gilmore's Garden in May have already achieved success on the bench, or in the field in Great Britain. There is no more interesting fact in connection with the present show than that Mr. J. Cumming Macdona and the other eminent English sportsmen who accompany him will meet on their arrival here the dogs with whom they have been familiar and whose descendants are still winning fame in their own country.

THE CLASSES.

Of sporting dogs there may be said to be four varieties—that is, of dogs used with the gun—viz., the three varieties of setters, English, Irish and Scotch (or Gordons), and pointers. The first are subdivided into a variety of strains, of which perhaps the most celebrated is the "Laveracks," the founder of which, Mr. Edward Laverack, died only a few days since at the ripe age of eighty years. This strain will be represented by Pride of the Border, Guy Mannering, Young Laverack and others owned by Mr. Charles H. Raymond, of Morris Plains, N. J. The next in this list is the Field Trial strain, a cross between the Laverack and what is known as the Duke-Rhaebe strain. S. H. Smith, of Strathroy, Canada, will show, of these, Leicester, Paris and other dogs whose reputation is already world wide. The native English will be represented by Mr. Thomas Morford's well known "orange and whites," and at least a hundred others that it would be tedious to mention. The Red Irish will be a grand class. First of all will be noble old Plunket, the only English Field Trial winner of his breed in America. Rev. J. Cumming Macdona, who comes over to judge (but not in this class), was formerly owner of Plunket. Scarcely less celebrated are the magnificent brace, Elcho and Kathleen, owned by Mr. William Jarvis, of Claremont, N. H. In this class alone there will be 250 dogs. The Gordons will also be a splendid lot. Mr. Munn's, Mr. Coleburn's, Dr. Fleet Speir's and a dozen other equally well known kennels are all entered. The pointers will be represented by the champion, Sensation, whose head now adorns half the boards and fences of the country, but who, as the property of the Westminster Club, will not compete. Mr. S. B. Dilly brings his champion, Ranger, from far-off Minnesota, and the old Maryland strains, tracing back a dozen generations, will be represented by a strong delegation.

ST. BERNARD DOGS.

Of other classes the St. Bernards will be a magnificent collection. Mr. Burdet Loomis, of Hartford, Mr. Thomas Pearsall, of New York, and others, sent at least thirty specimens, while to compete with them are a number of the descendants of Alp and Hospice, the champions for many years in England. Several entries of mastiffs have already been cabled from the other side, and the home country will furnish a quota, many of them the descendants of the old Lyme Hall breed, hard to beat. The fox terrier, dachshund, hound, and, in fact, all other classes named in the premium list will be well filled. General Custer's celebrated pack of deer hounds have been entered by Mr. Miller, of Poughkeepsie, the gentleman in whose kennels they have found a home.

POPULARITY OF THE SHOW.

As an indication of the popularity of this show it is worthy of mention that Mr. August Belmont has entered ten, including his well known Gordons, fox terriers, &c. Indeed, there is scarcely a lady in the fashionable quarters of the city who is the owner of a dog who has not entered it for the coming exhibition. The railroads centring in New York have all agreed to carry dogs to and from the show free of charge. The Western Union Telegraph Company will have an office in the garden, and wagons will be sent to meet all dogs.

THE BROOKLYN TRAGEDY.

DEATH OF LOUX AND CRITICAL CONDITION OF OFFICER ROGERS.

Antonio Loux, who was shot in the head by Officer Murtha, of the Third precinct, Brooklyn, in the affray which occurred at the former's residence, No. 659 Henry street, on Tuesday night last, died about half-past ten o'clock, yesterday morning, at the Long Island College Hospital. Officer Rogers, also of the Third precinct, who had his arm terribly mutilated by a charge of buckshot from a shotgun fired by Loux, is still at the same hospital in a very critical condition. There was a consultation of doctors held at twelve o'clock midnight, on Tuesday, to determine the advisability of amputating the wounded limb. No definite conclusion was arrived at, and another consultation was held at eight o'clock yesterday morning. The injured officer was informed of his critical condition and expressed his perfect willingness to have the doctors take any action they considered right. It was finally concluded by the doctors to await developments. Should amputation became necessary the arm will have to be severed from the shoulder. Much sympathy is expressed for the officer, as he has been a faithful and upright member of the department over fourteen years, and has a wife and six children. At the post-mortem examination on the body of Loux, held yesterday afternoon under the order of Coroner Simms, it was learned that the bullet from Officer Murtha's revolver entered between the supra orbital ridge and the frontal eminence on the right side, going directly through the three lobes of the right hemisphere of the brain, passing a little downward and backward and lodging in the apex of the right posterior lobe, within about an inch of the cranial wall. Officer Murtha has been suspended from duty, pending the investigation of Coroner Simms; but this action has been taken merely as a matter of form, every circumstance clearly indicating that the officer was entirely justified in shooting Loux. The deceased has always been considered by the police as a quarrelsome and dangerous man, and has been arrested on several occasions for drunkenness and for beating his wife. He was about forty-five years of age, a blacksmith by trade and employed in Tierney's glass works.

THE HOME OF THE DEAD MAN.

The apartments in which the deceased resided are very poorly furnished, but kept in a neat condition by Mrs. Loux, who is the mother of four children, all of whom are living, the oldest being eight years of age. Mrs. Loux thought a great deal of her husband, notwithstanding he treated her badly, and lately, when he was committed to Raymond street Jail for ten days, she furnished him food and tobacco, which she provided out of her own scanty earnings. During his drunken fits his wife has had to take refuge on many occasions in the apartments of her neighbors in fear that her husband would kill her.

OBITUARY.

RICHARD M. UNDERHILL.

Richard M. Underhill, a well known and highly respected citizen, has just died at his residence in Yorktown, Westchester county, N. Y. He was in the seventieth year of his age. Mr. Underhill was born, and has ever since lived, in the house in which he expired. He was a man of a strong practical mind, an extensive and very successful farmer. Few men have done more to advance the industries of the county. He gave much attention to fruit raising, and his cattle, horses and sheep were of the finest breeds. He was once elected to the State Assembly and served with great credit to himself and to the acceptance of his constituents. From that time he has declined all offers of office and devoted himself to his farm. He was a member of the orthodox Quaker Church, a man of great purity of life and character, devoted to the happiness and well being of his family, friends and country.
